Archdeacon Scott Beloved Padre Of World War I Dies at Quebec

QUEBEC, Jan. 19. — (CP) — Archdeacon Frederick George Scott, beloved padre of the Canadian corps in the First Great War, died in hospital today after an illness of more than three weeks. He was 82.

The end came while messages expressing hope for a speedy recovery for "Our grand old soldier," as many of them referred to him, continued to pour in. Jeffrey Hale hospital from all parts of Canada as well as from Britain and the United States.

A military funeral service will be held in St. Matthews Anglican church, his old charge, at four p.m. Friday following which the body will be sent to Montreal. There will be a short service in Christ Church Cathedral in Montreal Saturday. Then interment will take place in Mount Royal cemetery.

139 Japs Killed In Jungle Battle

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, New Guinea, Jan. 19. — (AP) — Driving into dense jungle land above the neck of Arawe Peninsula, southwestern New Britain, American troops, Sunday, gained 1,000 yards of Japanese territory and killed 139 of the enemy, the Allied high command announced today. The attackers suffered comparatively slight losses.

An Allied communiqué said the Americans, units of the 158th infantry, captured a portion of an enemy field artillery battery and 28 machine guns. The unit is known as the "Bushmasters."

The fact that enemy field guns were captured indicated the depth of the Japanese positions reached by the Bushmasters, the headquarters spokesman said.

The Bushmasters include Indians from 20 different tribes. They pride themselves in their ability to manoeuvre in the jungles and stalk the enemy. Each man carries several knives, in addition to his regulation pistols and rifles.

Belgium Protests Nazi Atrocities

LONDON, Jan. 19. — (CP) — A strongly worded protest by the Belgian government against German atrocities in occupied Belgium was broadcast last night.

Large numbers of Belgians throughout the country are being condemned to death after a summary trial and pretence of judicial procedure, it declared.

The protest concluded:

"This situation compels us once more to warn German authorities in the most solemn manner that brutalities inflicted on Belgians while they are in prison or being questioned, as well as unjust sentences and arbitrary detention of which they are victims, will be subject to adequate penalties when the hour of liberation and settlement of accounts arrives."

Canada As "Virtual" Leader Of Small Allied Countries At Peace Conference Seen

SASKATOON, Jan. 19. — (CP) — Senator Wishart Robertson, president of the National Liberal Federation, last night asserted that Canada will go to the peace conference "virtually the leader of the smaller countries among the United Nations."

Speaking to the Saskatchewan Liberal Association, Senator Robertson said that Prime Minister Mackenzie King must be sent to the conference as "the one among us who is most likely to govern for the future in a manner which will accomplish most for the objectives we have in mind." The prime minister "could well be the master architect of the future."

The smaller nations would know that Canada had no imperialistic ambitions. Many of them had been assisted by her mutual aid program. Her place had been recognized and demonstrated, as at the Atlantic City food conference.

EXERCISE INFLUENCE
Canada was in a position also to exercise a profound influence on larger nations, as a member of the British Commonwealth and "closest friend" of the United States. In relation to Russia she occupies a unique position as the only country among smaller nations to extend mutual aid as well as a free-will relief fund.

Ask Wage Order Be Withdrawn

VANCOUVER, Jan. 19. — (CP) — A resolution asking withdrawal of the Dominion government's new wage control order was endorsed unanimously last night at a meeting of the Vancouver New Westminster and district Trades and Labor Council at which four members of parliament, two of them Liberals, criticized the order.

The resolution suggested Percy Bengough, president of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, as a spokesman against the order and promised "to support him in any action he may recommend us to follow." It declared the order was "in opposition to all basic principles of freedom and justice."

Howard Green (P.C., Vancouver South), James Sinclair (L., North Vancouver), G. G. McGeer (L., Vancouver Burrard) and Angus MacInnis (C.C.F., Vancouver East), said they would oppose the order while George Cruickshank (L., Fraser Valley) said "I am not making any definite promises but will do the best I can to see labor gets a square deal."

LONDON, Jan. 19. — The Royal Canadian Navy is now providing more than two-fifths of the ocean-going escorts in the North Atlantic, A. V. Alexander, First Lord of the Admiralty, told the House of Commons today.

"The remarkable expansion of Canadian naval and air forces engaged in the battle of the Atlantic and their skillful deployment and gallant handling in appalling weather conditions has been one of the big factors in getting the measure of the U-boats," Alexander said.

"In air operations against the U-boats in the North Atlantic," he added, "approximately one-quarter is undertaken by aircraft of the Royal Canadian Air Force."

Answering a question by Sir Percy Hurd, Conservative, Alexander stated that the manpower

ALGIERS, Jan. 19. — British troops of the Fifth Army hurled a powerful offensive across the lower Garigliano river in western Italy and fought their way northward across the valley floor today on a blazing battlefield extending seven miles inland from the Tyrrhenian sea, it was announced today.

Striking in great force to break the long Italian deadlock and rip open the Nazi defences on the western road to Rome, veteran British divisions crossed the Garigliano under cover of darkness Monday night and by dawn Tuesday had won a firm hold on the north bank of the winding stream.

(A CBS broadcast said the British had advanced as much as two miles north of the river.)
(A German communiqué broadcast by the Berli radio said several divisions—possibly 45,000 men—had launched the offensive after a furious artillery bombardment and that fighting was in full swing all along the coastal front today.)

CROSS IN RAFTS, BOATS
Picked assault troops forded the icy Garigliano in rafts and rubber boats, making the 60- to 80-yard crossing under a cross-fire of machine gun bullets from their own supporting forces and from the Nazis entrenched on the north bank.

The main crossings were effected at three points along the twisting Garigliano—near the village of Suio, seven miles inland; in the vicinity of the Capua-Rome railroad

Fresh Canadian Units in Action

By ROSS MUNRO

LONDON, Jan. 19. — (CP) — Some fresh Canadian units now are in action for the first time in the Canadian sector of the 8th Army's front in Italy.

Douglas Amaron, Canadian Press war correspondent with the 8th Army, mentioned a Canadian medium artillery regiment in a story on action south of the Arielli river and this was the first indication that these mediums with their 5.5 guns firing 100-pound shells are supporting the Canadian 1st Division. Previously the division had its own 25-pounder field regiments.

It is possible, though there is no official confirmation here, that some fresh Canadian infantry and possibly some armored units now may be engaged in the Arielli fighting. There is a possibility some new troops from the Maritime provinces, central Ontario and western Canada have relieved some of the veteran units, particularly the westerners—the Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, The Loyall Edmonton and the Seaforth Highlanders—who fought the stern action for Ortona.

LONDON, Jan. 19. — R.A.F. Mosquitos on an offensive patrol over the Norwegian coast today attacked several large Blohm Voss long-distance engine-driven flying boats on the water at the Stavanger seaplane base, destroying one and severely damaging another with cannonfire.

Continuing the patrol, the fliers later destroyed another enemy aircraft, the Air Ministry announced.

Britain Is Designing 50-Passenger Plane For Post-War Air Transport

LONDON, Jan. 19. — (CP) — Britain is designing a 50-passenger trans-Atlantic transport plane to carry the nation's colors in the post-war race for civil air supremacy, Lord Beaverbrook, Lord Privy Seal, told the House of Lords today.

The new plane, to be named "Brabazon," will fly 250 miles an hour, weigh more than 100 tons, and will be able to span the Atlantic in 15 hours, said Lord Beaverbrook, in charge of co-ordinating civil air policy for peacetime. It will be able to carry two tons of mail in addition to 50 passengers, he added.

To fill the gap until the "Brabazon" is ready for flight, Britain is developing a 12-passenger, 32-ton trans-Atlantic plane which it is hoped will be available before the war ends.

This plane, called the "Tudor," will be suitable for military transport.

It was disclosed Monday that Britain is developing a huge Avro York monoplane that can carry 56 passengers for journeys up to 1,250 miles.

Steps Up

Filt. Lt. Harold (Hal) Lisson, son of Mr. and Mrs. R. S. Lisson, who has been promoted to the post of flight commander of a Canadian Mosquito intruder squadron in England according to information received here. Filt. Lt. Lisson was born and educated at Jarow, and he taught school in the Irma district for five years prior to his enlistment in the R.C.A.F. in June, 1940. He graduated as a sergeant pilot at Brantford, Ont., and was commissioned as a pilot officer in 1941. He went overseas in 1942 and has been attached to the Mosquito squadron since that time. His wife, the former Clara Watson, lives in Toronto. Another brother, LAC Raymond E. Lisson, R.C.A.F. is stationed at Moose Jaw, Sask. Group Capt. Paul V. Davoud, D.F.C., of Kingston, former commander of the squadron, has gone to a "more important post" and has been succeeded in command by Sqdn. Ldr. Don Macdonald of Vancouver.

Aid Speed, Safety Flight Strips Built Along Alaskan Road

OTTAWA, Jan. 19. — Flight strips along the Alaska Highway have been constructed by United States authorities, a reference paper compiled by the Wartime Information Board on defence projects in northwestern Canada disclosed today.

These flight strips, according to the statement, provide additional flying facilities in the north but will be used only for "contact flying" with airmen using the highway as a guide. They will provide facilities for the rapid movement of construction and maintenance personnel and equipment, as well as safe landing areas along the highway, it was said.

A closely-integrated network of weather observation posts and forecast stations has been established throughout the northwest by both Canadian and U.S. agencies, the review said.

Threat to Plane Output Removed

SEATTLE, Jan. 19. — (AP) — An Oregon-Washington strike of foundry workers yesterday threatened to hamper production in numerous war production plants but an army officer reported last night that a union agreement had ended the immediate threat to Boeing Flying Fortress production.

Approximately 6,000 members of the Molders and Foundry Workers' Union (A.F.L.) struck against a Regional War Labor Board decision, and their picketing kept an estimated 4,000 additional workmen from their jobs in affiliated shops.

The National War Labor Board appealed to the union membership and leaders for a return to work, asserting the strike "must be ended immediately," and claiming the work stoppages were hindering the war effort at a critical time.

Lt.-Col. Bernard D. Morley, Army Air Forces representative at the Boeing Aircraft Company plants, announced union action to relieve fears that picketing of the Pacific Car and Foundry Company would stop the supply of vitally needed Flying Fortresses wing spars, of which there is "less than a week's backlog."

Army Deferments For Coal Miners Again Extended

OTTAWA, Jan. 19. — (AP) — Labor Minister Mitchell announced today that blanket postponement of military training for men employed in coal mining has been extended to Aug. 1, 1944. Similar extension has been applied to the ban on acceptance of coal miners for voluntary enlistment in any branch of the armed forces.

The original order-in-council arising from labor shortages, was passed May 17, 1943, and was effective to Feb. 1, 1944.

Mustangs Bag 87 Planes On First 15 Operations

A U.S. MUSTANG BASE IN ENGLAND, Jan. 19. — (CP) — In their first 15 missions the sensational new, long-range Mustang fighters, which can out-do any known German interceptor in combat, have destroyed or damaged 87 Nazi planes against a loss of six and given the U.S. Air Force assurance of protection for heavy bombers almost anywhere over Germany.

Although their presence in the European theatre was announced only last week, the Mustangs have been operating incognito since Dec. 1 and have scored 41 confirmed victories over enemy planes, 13 probables and 33 damaged.

The first detailed account of their accomplishments was given correspondents yesterday at an official "unveiling" of one American fighter group.

Biggest day for the Mustangs was the Kiel raid Jan. 5 when they blasted 18 Nazis out of the sky without loss to themselves.

They made their second big haul last Tuesday—15 Nazis without a loss—while herding a great formation of heavy bombers to Ochsersleben, less than 100 miles from Berlin, in the deepest fighter penetration yet made into Germany.

Their extra long range is made possible by auxiliary fuel tanks under the wings.

LONDON, Jan. 19. — Powerful Russian armies drove toward the Baltic sea along a 25-mile front west of Leningrad today and Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin announces that seven Nazi divisions—possibly 105,000 men—have been thrown back 7½ miles in five days of bloody fighting.

Blasting through German fortifications that had been paralyzed by the massed guns of the Red army, Soviet infantrymen stormed and captured the fortress town of Krasnoyarsk, 15 miles southwest of Leningrad on the Leningrad - Pskov railroad line.

German field guns that had been pounding Leningrad throughout the 29-month siege of the former Soviet capital fell to the Soviet troops as they swept through Krasnoyarsk and drove on down the rail line toward the Estonian frontier, 65 miles southwest.

Claims Canada Most "Monopoly Ridden" Nation

velop a balance in the Americas to the tremendous force of the United States," he added.

Canada must raise her voice in world councils and use her influence in the making of the post-war world.

MUST PLAN ECONOMY

The C.C.F. recognized that the maintenance and extension of Canada's trade with the world depended on the orderly planning of her internal economy. She could not dispose of her surplus products unless she was able to accept the goods and services of other nations.

War-time experience had demonstrated the practicability of planned trade. Profit-making was not involved in Canadian bacon shipments to the United Kingdom.

"You have probably heard that our bacon contracts with the United Kingdom have been cut recently," Mr. Coldwell continued. "They have been cut because of the government's fear that when mid-Victorian trading relations are resumed after the war, our bacon market will disappear."

INTERESTS OF PEACE

The C.C.F. recognized that the interests of peace could be served by the retention, extension and re-adaptation of wartime agencies developed for economic collaboration among the United Nations. Democratic planning could not stop at national boundaries.

The development of backward regions demanded creation of publicly-owned international investment agencies, which would divert investment to regions where it was needed most. Imperialism, in all its forms, must go.

Some international organization, whether the old League of Nations revived or a new creation of the United Nations, was needed so law-abiding nations could stamp out aggression wherever it threatened.

"I cannot agree with Field Marshal (Jan Christiaan) Smuts (Prime Minister of South Africa) that the post-war world should be dominated by a few great powers, surrounded by satellite states," said Mr. Coldwell.

PATH TO NEW WAR

"Anything less than an international organization open to all peoples, and democratic in structure, means we tread again the path toward uneasy power alliances and war."

Canada could assist in creating an international air force operating under an international organization to safeguard the peace.

The C.C.F. "insisted" that if Canada were to help in building a lasting peace that she must give moral and material support to the world democratic forces striving to create an economy of abundance through the techniques of democratic planning.

Canada should assume her rightful place in world councils and exercise on world affairs an influence at least commensurate with her military power.

"Although an adult nation, fifth in war among the United Nations, Canada continues to follow the policy of inaction which allowed her to drift into war in 1939 without once having taken any positive action to help preserve peace," Mr. Coldwell said.

HINTS CANADA "OUT"

Momentous decisions were being taken in the name of the United Nations which were shaping the nature of the post-war world but there was no evidence Canada had made any contribution to these decisions or had influenced them.

"Canada is, we are told, 'kept informed' of proceedings at Casablanca, Washington, Moscow and Tehran; but that is not enough," said Mr. Coldwell.

"First in military and productive power among the smaller nations of the world Canada can take the leadership in ensuring that the post-war world will not be dominated by a handful of great powers."

Beloved Padre Of World War I Dies at Quebec

Christmas eve, suffering an attack of influenza that later resulted in a lung congestion.

He had retained almost until the end that keen interest in current events that characterized his life, and throughout his illness asked for newspapers daily.

The esteem in which he was held by all members of the Canadian corps of the First Great War is well-known. But his reputation went beyond that into the international field, as shown by the fact that during the Quebec conference last summer he was invited to a private interview with Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt.

For them he recited one of the many poems he wrote since the outbreak of the present conflict. To England. He looked upon that as one of the best of his later poems, together with "Hymn in Wartime," written after the fall of Hong Kong, set to music and first sung in Chalmers-Wesley church here at a Hong Kong memorial service.

"Since 1905 he had been chaplain to the Royal Rifles of Canada, a battalion of which was at Hong Kong when it fell.

LAST APPEARANCE DEC. 19

His last public appearance was in St. Matthew's Anglican church here Dec. 19, when he celebrated Holy Communion in the church in which he had served continuously—except for four years' leave of absence during the first Great War—for 37 years as curate and rector until his retirement in 1933.

As the oldest living alumnus of Montreal High school, he attended the centenary of that school last November and recited some of his poems in his last public functions outside Quebec City.

Archdeacon Scott, wounded in the 1914-18 conflict and awarded the Distinguished Service Order for valiant conduct during that time, tried to join the army again because of his age. He was 78 then—he did his utmost to promote morale, chiefly through his patriotic poems. A number of his poems during the tough days of 1940-41 were widely published.

PILGRIMAGE TO VIMY

Three years after his retirement as rector of St. Matthew's, he renewed old acquaintances with the men who had learned to love him in 1914-18 when he joined the Vimy pilgrimage and blessed the veterans at the Vimy Memorial.

His love of the Canadian Corps never lessened, and one of the things that brought him a great deal of pleasure in recent years was the fact that the Canadian First Division of this war wear the red patch that marked the First Division in the war he knew more intimately.

When it was announced the First Division had landed in Sicily, he called them urging the Red Patchers to uphold the traditions of 1914-18. It gave him a good deal of pleasure a little later when it became known that the First Division was upholding that tradition so well that the Germans called them the "Red Patch Devils."

It was at Canal du Nord in September, 1918, that he was wounded in the arms, legs and body by an exploding shell. Despite his wounds, he carried his crucifix in hand over the evacuation route, preaching good cheer and patience to the wounded around him.

about three miles further west, and at Argento, just inland from the sea.

The large-scale action by the British wing of Lt.-Gen. Clark's army is threatened to break the southern anchor of the German line before Rome.

Fierce enemy resistance was encountered all along the attack front as the Nazis fought to prevent a breakthrough that would both expose the right flank of their Gustav line before Cassino and lay open the coastal road to Rome.

BEATING BACK NAZIS

Latest reports on the fighting indicated that the British were beating back the Nazis step by step across the Garigliano River floor, despite repeated armored counter-attacks and enemy mortar fire.

At the centre of the 5th Army line, American and French units massed along the east bank of the Rapido river before Cassino and sent patrols stabbing into the enemy defences in preparation for a full-scale assault on that fortress town straddling the inland invasion road to Rome. Heavy artillery hurled tons of shells into the battered road.

A headquarters spokesman revealed that the French forces attacking north of Cassino captured 600 German prisoners between Jan. 12 and 18, and inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy.

CANADIANS ATTACKING

Across the Italian boot, Canadian units of the British 8th Army pressed a savage attack against Nazi strong points in the hills overlooking the Adriatic coastal road just north and west of Ortona.

While the entire land front blazed into action, swarms of Allied fighters and fighter bombers battered the enemy's front lines and heavy craft spread ruin through the network of German-controlled railroads in Tuscany.

Other Allied raiders swept across the Adriatic to hammer enemy shipping and port installations along the Yugoslav coast, while British destroyers pounded

Magazine Says Poles Sabotage Invasion Plans

By M. S. HANDLER

MOSCOW, Jan. 19.—The magazine, "War and the Working Class" reaffirmed Soviet aspirations for friendly relations with Poland today, but charged the exiled Polish government in London with attempts to sabotage such relations as well as Allied preparations for the invasion of Europe.

The magazine made the most bitter of a series of Soviet attacks on the Polish government in exile, lending new weight to strong indications that Moscow was unwilling to deal with it in the border dispute.

An article by Nikolai Baltisky captioned "Poland, Our Neighbor" said:

"The exiled Polish government and its followers do not desire to establish good neighborly relations with the Soviet Union. These circles oppose by all possible means the establishment of friendly relations between Poland and the U.S.S.R. in spite of the fact that such relations would serve Poland's own interests as well as the common interests of firm, enduring collaboration among the peace-loving peoples of Europe."

The article charged that the London Poles and their followers "try to frighten credulous people with tales of anarchy and civil war in even of an invasion of Europe by the Allies, as if it were possible to imagine greater anarchy or bloodier civil war than the Hitlerite bandits' occupation regime in European countries."

"It is they who shout about the high losses awaiting the Allies on the 'European coast,' Baltisky continued. 'It is they who come forth with treacherous advice about all kinds of postponements of the invasion, striving to disrupt preparations being made to open a second front.'

"It is impossible to regret that those provocations do not receive the necessary rebuffs, for it is indisputable that an army undertaking the decisive storming of the enemy has the right to demand the suppression of intrigues of hardy-masked agencies of this enemy in its rear."

PACT "FORCED" ON RUSSIA

Baltisky accused the Poles of violating the Versailles treaty by forcing war on the Soviet Union when it was weakened and disorganized as a result of the world war, the revolution and the civil war.

The "highly unjust" pact of Riga, he said, was forced on Russia, under which the Poles annexed the western Ukraine and western White Russia. The frontiers suggested by the Allied supreme council, the Curzon line, were rejected. So was a Soviet proposal for a plebiscite in those areas, Baltisky said.

"Perhaps Poland would have remained a peaceful state if Versailles had given her purely ethnographically Polish territories," he said. "But the Imperialist victors had other plans. They intended for Poland to become the western bastion against the east, and to play the principal role in the struggle against the Soviet Union and the establishment of a cordon sanitaire."

WITH CANADIANS IN ITALY

Jan. 19.—(CP)—Canadian troops returned to patrolling activity Tuesday following a fierce one-day flare-up Monday which died down almost as soon as it started.

The Adriatic front was as quiet Tuesday as it was noisy on Monday. Guns which fired 100,000 shells at the Germans in 36 hours were still active but for them too there was a comparative lull.

The position of the Canadians and Germans Tuesday night was the same as before the Canadians launched their attack at dawn Monday against German defences south of the Arielli river.

The Canadians had made some of their objectives against the fiercest machine-gunning then. Having tested the Germans in front of the Arielli they returned during the night to their original positions.

several points along the 25-mile battle front in a series of lightning encircling moves that cooped the German front into scores of isolated pockets.

Moscow dispatches said the offensive was preceded by an artillery barrage so devastating that German troops were dazed and literally speechless.

Swarms of Russian assault planes bombed and machine-gunned the Nazis as they rose from the trenches to meet the Soviets.

The Russian offensive down the Leningrad-Pskov railroad coincided with another attack just south of Oranienbaum, on the Gulf of Finland, 19 miles west of Leningrad.

CLEAR NAZI THREAT

The twin drives were aimed at rolling the German siege lines back to the Baltic states and clearing away the last Nazi threat to the old capital.

Indicating the size of the attacking Soviet forces, Stalin's order of the day paid tribute to two air force generals, five infantry generals, two artillery leaders and one armored group.

Nearly 700 miles to the south, the Soviet 1st Ukrainian army cut the Rovno-Shepetovka link of the double-trunk Warsaw-Kazatin railway, forcing the Germans to fall back 130 miles southwest to Lwow for their next major feeder railway into southern Russia.

The double-edged thrust at either end of a 110-mile sector west and south of Leningrad put the Russians on the offensive all along a winding 2,000-mile front from Leningrad to the Black Sea, and observers confidently predicted that by spring the Germans will have been driven back into the Baltic states, Poland and Rumania.

HEAVILY-FORTIFIED AREA

The Soviet high command announced its twin penetrations of an area which the Germans have been fortifying steadily for more than two years in a communique last night on the first anniversary of the lifting of the 515-day German siege of Leningrad with the clearing of a nine-mile corridor to the east.

Industrial Board Collects $30,818

During the last year, the Alberta Board of Industrial Relations collected $30,818 for 1,812 Edmonton employees, by Premier Ernest Manning, minister of trade and industry. The sum represents back wages owed to the workers, and compares with $24,372 collected for 1,278 employees in 1942.

In Edmonton during last December, $2,870 was collected for 126 employees. A total of 624 inspections of industries and places of business were made by board officers during the month. Employees affected by the inspections numbered 3,454.

In the two cities of Edmonton and Calgary, back wages collected for employees in 1943 amounted to $38,655. More than 2,200 employees benefited by the collections.

C.W.A.C. Member is Awarded B.E.M. for Outstanding Courage

Honored

Credited with saving at least two lives, Pte. Mary Lillian Quinlan of the C.W.A.C., now attached to A-20 C.A.S.C. training centre, Red Deer, has just been informed that she has been awarded the British Empire Medal. The award was made for outstanding courage and presence of mind in an accident which occurred near Sydney, N.S., last July.

Pte. Quinlan and four companions from the C.W.A.C. were returning from Mulgrave, N.S., to Sydney in the rear of a heavy army lorry partially loaded with supplies. The vehicle was driven by an army driver with a spare driver with him in the cab.

At about midnight in an isolated spot on the highway and at the top of a steep hill, the steering gear went out of adjustment, the driver lost control, and the lorry careened wildly for some distance, turned over several times, and came to rest on the pavement with the occupants of the body, with the exception of Pte. Quinlan, pinned under the wreckage; the chassis and cab stopped a hundred feet further on, both soldier occupants being thrown to the ground.

Pte. Quinlan was thrown some distance from the vehicle.

BRUISED AND DAZED

BruiSED, dazed and suffering from a severely sprained ankle, she nevertheless had the pluck and presence of mind to tackle single-handed the task of rendering all possible aid. The injured drivers were partly buried in cases of supplies, and further imprisoned by the heavy tarpaulin cover. Pte. Quinlan ripped an opening in the heavy canvas and commenced moving the mass of cargo; a C.W.A.C. sergeant major had a full drum of oil across her body, and all were cut and bleeding, one profusely. She says the sight was gruesome and horrifying, and not made any easier to contemplate by the fact that some of the injured were hysterical.

Improvising bandages from clothing, Pte. Quinlan managed to stop most of the bleeding, and moved those who did not appear to be dangerously injured to a more comfortable spot. Turning her attention to the men who were both unconscious, she attempted to revive them but they failed to respond.

She then hobbled on her sprained ankle over half a mile to the nearest telephone, where she called a doctor, the R.C.M.P., and a priest, then quickly but painfully made her way back to the scene of the accident, and aided the rescuers in rendering treatment, and assisting in carrying the injured to a nearby house.

SIX IN HOSPITAL

All six of the injured persons were in hospital for periods ranging from two to three months, and the doctor who attended the accident states that Pte. Quinlan's heroic and prompt action undoubtedly saved at least two lives.

Pte. Quinlan's home is at Holyrood, Conception Bay, Newfoundland, where she lived with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. L. Quinlan. She was born in Nova Scotia, and as a Canadian citizen she enlisted in the C.W.A.C. at Halifax in August, 1942. After a course of training as a driver she was posted to Area Headquarters at Sydney, N.S., as a duty driver. She is at present taking a driver-mechanic's course at A-20 Canadian Army Service Corps training centre, Red Deer.

ACCIDENT TIME

At the time of the accident she had received no training in first aid, simply using, as she says, common sense, and recalling what

Appoint Supervisor For Metis Colonies

A. C. McCulley, Edmonton, formerly of Hanna, has been appointed by the provincial government as supervisor of Metis affairs, Hon. Dr. W. W. Cross, minister of health and public welfare, announced on Wednesday. The new appointee has been named to a post left vacant by the death of F. J. Buck.

Mr. McCulley, who was formerly employed by the government for a period of about six years, resigned from the service last August. He started work with the department of municipal affairs, and later was with the special areas board.

In his new position, he will be in charge of seven Metis colonies in various parts of Northern Alberta.

Ontario's Liberals Pledge Government "Qualified Support"

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—(CP)—The 15 Liberal members of the Ontario legislature will give "qualified support" to Premier Drew's Progressive Conservative government which holds 38 of the 90 house seats, it was stated today by W. L. Miller of Bruce Mines, Liberal M.P.P. for Algoma-Manitowlin.

Mr. Miller said in an interview that a caucus yesterday attended by 65 Liberal M.P.P.'s and Liberal candidates defeated in last year's provincial election, decided they would support any legislation they considered to be in the best interests of the province. Support would be given such legislation whether it was offered by the government or the C.C.F. opposition, which holds 34 seats.

she had heard and read from time to time concerning aid to the injured.

Now 22 years old, Pte. Quinlan was educated in Holyrood public and high schools, and is a keen skater and bowler. Tall, brunette, with hazel eyes and a shy but merry smile, she is extremely modest about her achievement. Asked how she felt on hearing of the award, she replied, "I was terribly embarrassed—I had forgotten all about it."

Soviet Press Prints Denial Peace Moves

Naturally these matters are absorbing the constant thought of His Majesty's government and we are in the closest touch with both our Allies—the government of the Soviet Republic and the Polish government in London.

ASKS "UTMOST RESERVE"

He asked the commons to show the "utmost reserve" for the present on the Russian-Polish question, which was brought to a head Monday with Russia's rejection of a Polish suggestion that the two governments negotiate the solution of "all outstanding questions" through the mediation of the United States and Britain.

Russia broke off relations with the Polish exile regime here last April after the Poles had asked the International Red Cross to investigate a German propaganda charge that the Soviets had murdered a number of Polish army officers near Smolensk.

However, the principal obstacle to resumption of relations between the two countries revolves around the post-war Russian-Polish border. Poland has demanded the return of the entire eastern portion of the country occupied by the Red Army in 1939, but Russia has suggested the new border be established along the Curzon line of 1919.

TAKE STING FROM STORY

Meantime, the Russian press, apparently attempting to offset British indignation over Pravda's "separate peace" dispatch, reprinted today a London newspaper report that Adolf Hitler had attempted to send a peace offer to the Allies through Turkey.

Political sources believed that Moscow authorized publication of the Ankara dispatch from the London Sunday Times in an effort to take the sting out of Pravda's story by showing that the Soviet press was not alone in printing peace rumors.

Little Damage In North Deraill

The engine and four leading cars of Northern Alberta Railway's train No. 1 were derailed early Tuesday morning about two miles east of Kinuso, between Edmonton and High Prairie, N.A.R. officials said here Wednesday.

Only baggage, mail and express cars left the rails with the engine, and the accident was caused by a broken rail. Service has been resumed with very little interruption in traffic, and operations on the line have returned to normal.

U.F.A. Meeting Will Consider Fusion Plan

CALGARY, Jan. 19.—(CP)—A decision on the question whether any form of amalgamation shall be entered into between the United Farmers of Alberta and the Alberta Farmers' Union is expected to be reached at the convention of the U.F.A.

Thirteen resolutions on the question of amalgamation between these two bodies are on the agenda for discussion.

Some time ago, a committee from the U.F.A. was appointed to negotiate with the A.F.U. in an endeavor to reach a basis of settlement, but no report from this committee has yet been filed.

FAVOR DETERMINED
The Carlton U.F.A. local is of the opinion that the amalgamation question should be set aside until such time "as our committee reports favorable progress looking to a basis on which there is some chance of union being effected."

The Chinook U.F.A. local is of the opinion that "no amalgamation be made with any other farm organization in this province unless the name 'United Farmers of Alberta' be retained, and unless the future welfare of its co-operative activities be adequately safeguarded."

The Calgary local of the U.F.W.A. has forwarded a resolution which provides "that we once more invite all farmers of Alberta to join our organization and do not further consider the question of amalgamation with the Alberta Farmers' Union."

FINANCIAL POSITION OF GROUP IS GOOD

CALGARY, Jan. 19.—(CP)—The United Farmers of Alberta finished the financial year ended November 30, 1943, with excess of expenditures over revenue of $1,682.93, but the organization is still in a healthy financial position, according to the annual financial report presented to delegates yesterday attending the 35th annual convention.

Revenue for the year totalled $10,755.52 while expenditures totalled $12,438.45.

At December 1, 1942, the organization had a surplus of $3,766.04 and after providing for the 1943 deficit, there was a surplus of $4,083.11 still to the credit of the organization.

MEMBERSHIP FEES

Membership fees provided the greater part of the revenue during the year. A total of $5,406.43 was received in U.F.A. membership fees while the U.F.W.A. contributed $1,436.75. The juniors provided an additional $185.05 while members at large contributed $449 to make a total revenue from this source of $7,474.23.

On the expenditures side, a total of $3,194.24 was expended on organization, while $6,848.84 was expended on salaries and office administration.

U.F.A. MEMBERSHIP NOW TOTALS 7,722

CALGARY, Jan. 19.—(CP)—The United Farmers of Alberta ended 1943 with a membership of 7,722 representing 460 locals while the United Farm Women of Alberta have a membership of 1,305 represented by 118 locals, according to annual reports presented to delegates attending the United Farmers of Alberta convention yesterday afternoon.

In addition to the above, 76 junior locals were operated during the year with a membership of 550.

The palm for the largest U.F.A. membership by constituencies goes to the electoral district of Acadia. In that particular area, there are 70 locals operating with a total membership of 1,307.

Next in line is the Medicine Hat constituency, which has 39 locals and 625 members.

MACLEOD IN LEAD

Macleod has the largest membership in the women's section. There are 14 locals with a membership of 207, while Wetaskiwin runs a close second with 13 locals and 201 members.

Vegreville leads all other constituencies in the number of junior members enrolled with a total of 115 representing five locals.

The U.F.A. membership in 1942 was 8,005.

Staging Route C.O. Returns From Tour

Group Capt. V. H. Patriarche, A.F.C., new commanding officer of the "Northwest Staging Route," has returned from an aerial tour of staging units of the route.

He was accompanied by Wing Cmdr. W. J. "Packy" McFarlane, former commanding officer of the staging route and officials of Western Air Command.

Wing Cmdr. McFarlane, recently posted to command the bombing and gunnery school at Jarvis, Ont., is leaving Thursday for Vancouver, where he will serve temporarily at headquarters of Western Air Command, which recently took over direction of the Northwest Staging Route.

Important Role For Canada at Conference Seen

dian delegates can be led by a man with the experience and prestige of the prime minister, she can exercise a profound influence on the future course of the world in general and the fortunes of Canada in particular," Senator Robertson said. "On that occasion we will have emerged to our full status as a nation, and I believe, will have our feet placed on a sure road for the future."

Senator Robertson said no one was so well equipped for the task as Mr. King and no party as well as the Liberal party. He asserted: "The other two major parties in Canada either do not know how or do not care. Whatever Mr. Bracken's viewpoint may be, he, as head of a Conservative government in Canada, would be just about as effective in matters of this kind as Mr. Arthur Meighen would be in carrying out his ideas if he were the head of a C.C.F. government."

FEW TRADE INTERESTS

"The Conservative Party in Canada have displayed very little interest in trade agreements with the exception of the Ottawa agreements and they almost wrecked the British Commonwealth in the process."

"The C.C.F. leader and his followers have attached so little importance to the subject that their influence, under these circumstances, would be of a very ineffective nature."

Senator Robertson outlined as objectives for Canada "full nationhood and a self-respecting place in the family of nations" and "maximum of prosperity and security for the Canadian people of all classes and occupations in all geographical sections of the country."

He said the country was much farther on the way to realization of these objectives than many realized. Canada's status as a free nation was no longer open to question after September, 1939.

OPPOSITION ENCOUNTERED

Opposition to Canada's national development had been encountered from two opposed points of view. Colonial-minded imperialists "cannot see that the people of Canada could never be united behind a policy imposed upon them from outside our own borders" and certain narrow isolationists "cannot see that national security can no longer be bought by neutrality, however scrupulous."

"Throughout the war, Mr. King has guided Canada safely between these two extremes," said Senator Robertson. "At no time have we blindly followed the leadership of other nations. Canada's decisions have been her own, made in the light of her own national interests. At the same time, no narrow or short-run view has been taken of Canada's national interests."

"The prime minister had counted 'On the magnitude of Canada's contribution to the common pool to speak for itself.' Canada was not a great power, could not expect to have a voice in international affairs comparable with that of Russia or the United States. 'But we do expect and we have secured a voice fully commensurate with our strength and importance.'"

SECURITY ASSURED

The 1940 Ogdensburg agreement, assuring the security of Canada's home base, "Enabled Canada to throw even more weight into the struggle against the enemy—weight which history may well decide was the extra which turned the scales in that critical year between the collapse of France and the Nazi attack on Russia."

Turning to the second objective of "prosperity and security for all," he said Canada's war planning had been done on a long-term scale.

Mutual aid was designed to help the Allied war effort, but at the same time had developed good-will that would help post-war markets. Price control also was a war measure primarily, "but experience of the last war points to the fact it provided the only sound basis for prosperity in the post-war period."

LOWER TAXES IN FUTURE

High taxation for war laid the basis for lower taxes in the future. Strategic location of wartime airfields would help development of future air transportation.

Senator Robertson said there is a group in Canada "the sole ambition of which is to defeat Mr. King." He continued: "they may be relatively few in numbers, but they have great resources at their disposal, and they are very ingenious."

"Their newspapers alternate between carping criticism and sneers and ridicule. From the depths of their luxurious offices they seem to have acquired the curious idea that the public can be easily fooled, so they dressed up the old Conservative party, then with the new clothes of national government, and now with the respectability of Mr. Bracken."

16 Alberta Men War Casualties

In an official casualty list released Wednesday names of 16 Alberta men appear. Pte. Clarence Robert Weir, son of Mrs. Rika Weir, 10224 89 street, was listed as having died of wounds. Pte. Wilmot James Bennett Ruttan, son of Mrs. Henriette Sheppard, 6722 81 street, was killed in action.

Other Edmonton men listed killed in action include Pte. William Demchuk, whose sister, Miss Anne Demchuk, lives at 10707 96 street; Cpl. Robert Lister, whose wife, Mrs. Sarah J. H. Lister, lives at 10166 94A street. Edmonton men wounded in action are A.C.S.M. Thomas McGee, brother of James McGee, West Edmonton; Pte. Henry Rowland Trowbridge, whose wife, Mrs. Bertha Trowbridge, lives at 9603 105 street.

Lt. Kenneth Geo. Thring, whose wife, Mrs. Dorothy Gibson Thring, lives at Arrowwood, is reported wounded.

Other Alberta men reported killed in action are Sgt. Walter Lawrence Bober, son of John Bober, Derwent; Pte. Matthew Henry Bryans, son of William Bryans, of unknown address; Lance Cpl. William Maxwell McLennan, son of Clayton Harvey McLennan, Ryley.

Others wounded are: Gnr. Paul Lee, son of Mrs. Elizabeth Lee, Onoway; Pte. Gordon Arnold Godwin, brother of Reggie Godwin, Big Valley; Pte. ## Procedure on Estates Personal Effects of Fliers Killed or Presumed Dead Are Sent to Next-of-Kin

This last of a series of three articles tells of the procedure followed by the R.C.A.F., similar in many details to that used by other services, in connection with settling servicemen's estates. —EDITOR.

By JACK BRAYLEY

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—(CP)—A neat pile of books, a bundle of hankies, clothing, a deck of cards, a bottle of hair tonic, a stack of letters addressed in a girl's hand, and the burned-out remnants of a watch—the personal effects of one of Canada's fighting airmen killed in overseas operations—lay along the big wooden bench.

A graying shipping clerk handled them gently as he transferred them to a packing case—that is, all but the burned-out watch. It will be held out of the package to spare relatives' feelings. However, if they inquire it will be forwarded to them.

This is the service's estates administration office, which goes to work after an airman, sailor or soldier, has been reported dead or presumed dead.

THREE IN CHARGE

The air section, busier than the rest, is in charge of Sqdn. Ldr. N. O. Seagram, of Toronto. Col. L. M. Firth, of Toronto, is general administrator, Capt. R. G. Phelan, of Toronto, is in charge of the military section, and Cmdr. H. R. Wade, of Vancouver, looks after the Navy's interests. The three men and their officer staffs are lawyers and their chief job is settling estates and routing personal effects back to next-of-kin.

Sqdn. Ldr. Seagram's work starts when the casualty branch notifies him that Pte. Sgt. John Jones is dead or presumed dead. With the notification comes Jones' will and other information that will have bearing on the settlement of the estate.

The section gets in touch with the next-of-kin and the process of settling the estate is expedited. For this purpose, a special order-in-council waives certain probate formalities and no legal costs are incurred by the relatives. Bank savings, deferred pay standing of the airmen's credit, war stamps and victory bonds can all be redeemed under special legislation.

DELAYS UNAVOIDABLE

However, many delays are bound to occur, especially in handling Far East and Middle East casualties where pay books are not readily available. Also, many Canadians are serving in R.A.F. units, which adds to the lengthy but necessary estate investigation.

Sometimes there is no will, or the airman has taken a wife overseas and his original will is no longer valid. This means some time must be taken in settling just who is the beneficiary.

When the settlement is completed—it takes anywhere from three to nine months and in some exceptional cases has taken a year—the estate is distributed and the personal effects forwarded to the beneficiary.

THIS IS PROCEDURE

Here is the procedure, followed religiously, for disposing personal effects:

When Pte. Sgt. Jones is reported missing station police, accompanied by officers at his base, gather his belongings and sometimes spend weeks tracing up articles he may have loaned buddies or are unaccounted for. An inventory is made and the articles and the inventory are forwarded to a central depository.

Then the articles are packed tidily, and with the inventory enclosed, shipped to the Ottawa office. Here letters and diaries containing information of value to the enemy are censored and effects which might cause distress to the family are left out. Then the package is expressed to the next-of-kin under special sealed wraps.

An interesting sidelight on the disposition of servicemen's personal effects is the way it is handled by the navy. Officers' belongings are handled in much the same manner as army and air force but the ratings observe an old custom that is provided for in the King's regulations. Dating back to Nelson's days, the custom is called "sale before the mast" and is aimed at providing for widows and dependants.

HOLD AUCTION SALE

The seaman's intimate possessions, like his watch, are forwarded to his next-of-kin, but his less personal things are placed in a pile before the mast and officers supervise an auction and officers supervise the sale. The men, anxious to provide for the shipmate's family, sometimes buy and re-buy his silk hanky or his socks, paying as much as six times their value. The sale is conducted with appropriate respect and its object is deeply appreciated and understood by the beneficiaries.

Air Lines Traffic Manager on Tour

Dave Sturton, traffic manager for the Mackenzie district of the C.P. Air Lines, is leaving on an inspection tour of the district this week. He expects to be away about three weeks.

Points to be visited will include: Fort McMurray, Fort Smith, Fort McPherson, Norman Wells, Fort Hope, Arctic Red River, Aklavik, Fort Rae, Fort Resolution, and Yellowknife.

Walter E. Gilbert, F.G.R.S., superintendent for the Mackenzie district, will probably accompany Mr. Sturton for part of the inspection tour.

SHOT ENEMY DOWN

"Although the enemy attacked at great speed Pte. Lt. Wagner skillfully manipulated his turret and guns, shooting the enemy down in flames. Later, during the same operation his aircraft was subjected to another enemy attack and this officer shared in the destruction of the second hostile fighter with his rear gunner."

"On yet another occasion whilst attacking Achen, Pte. Lt. Wagner shot down a single-engine enemy fighter and later by skillful directions enabled his captain to frustrate an attack by a Focke Wulf 190."

"Throughout his operational tour this squadron gunner leader has set a splendid example of courage, determination and coolness in action."

Pte. Lt. Savage: "This officer has completed an outstanding tour of operational duty as a navigator. During this period he has participated in attacks on Berlin, Peenemunde and many targets in the Ruhr area. During the sortie to Peenemunde his aircraft was attacked by two enemy fighters which were eventually driven off."

UNDER HEAVY FIRE

"The aircraft was then engaged by heavy and accurate anti-aircraft fire, height was lost, and the aircraft was far off its course whilst the lack of fuel began a great anxiety."

"Nevertheless, cool, skilful navigation by Pte. Lt. Savage extricated the crew from its dangerous situation and ensured a safe landing at base. This officer has done excellent work in training junior navigators."

Claim Raid

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(CP)—The Vichy radio broadcast a report last night that the Cherbourg area had been bombed. No Allied air operations had been announced by R.A.F. or U.S. headquarters in England yesterday.

Railroads in the U.S. Returned to Owners

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The United States railroad wage dispute was settled with raises all around and the government-seized lines were ordered returned to their owners last night.

The return of the railroads to private management was ordered by War Secretary Henry L. Stimson after receipt of a letter from the White House advising him of the settlement and recommending the lifting of army control.

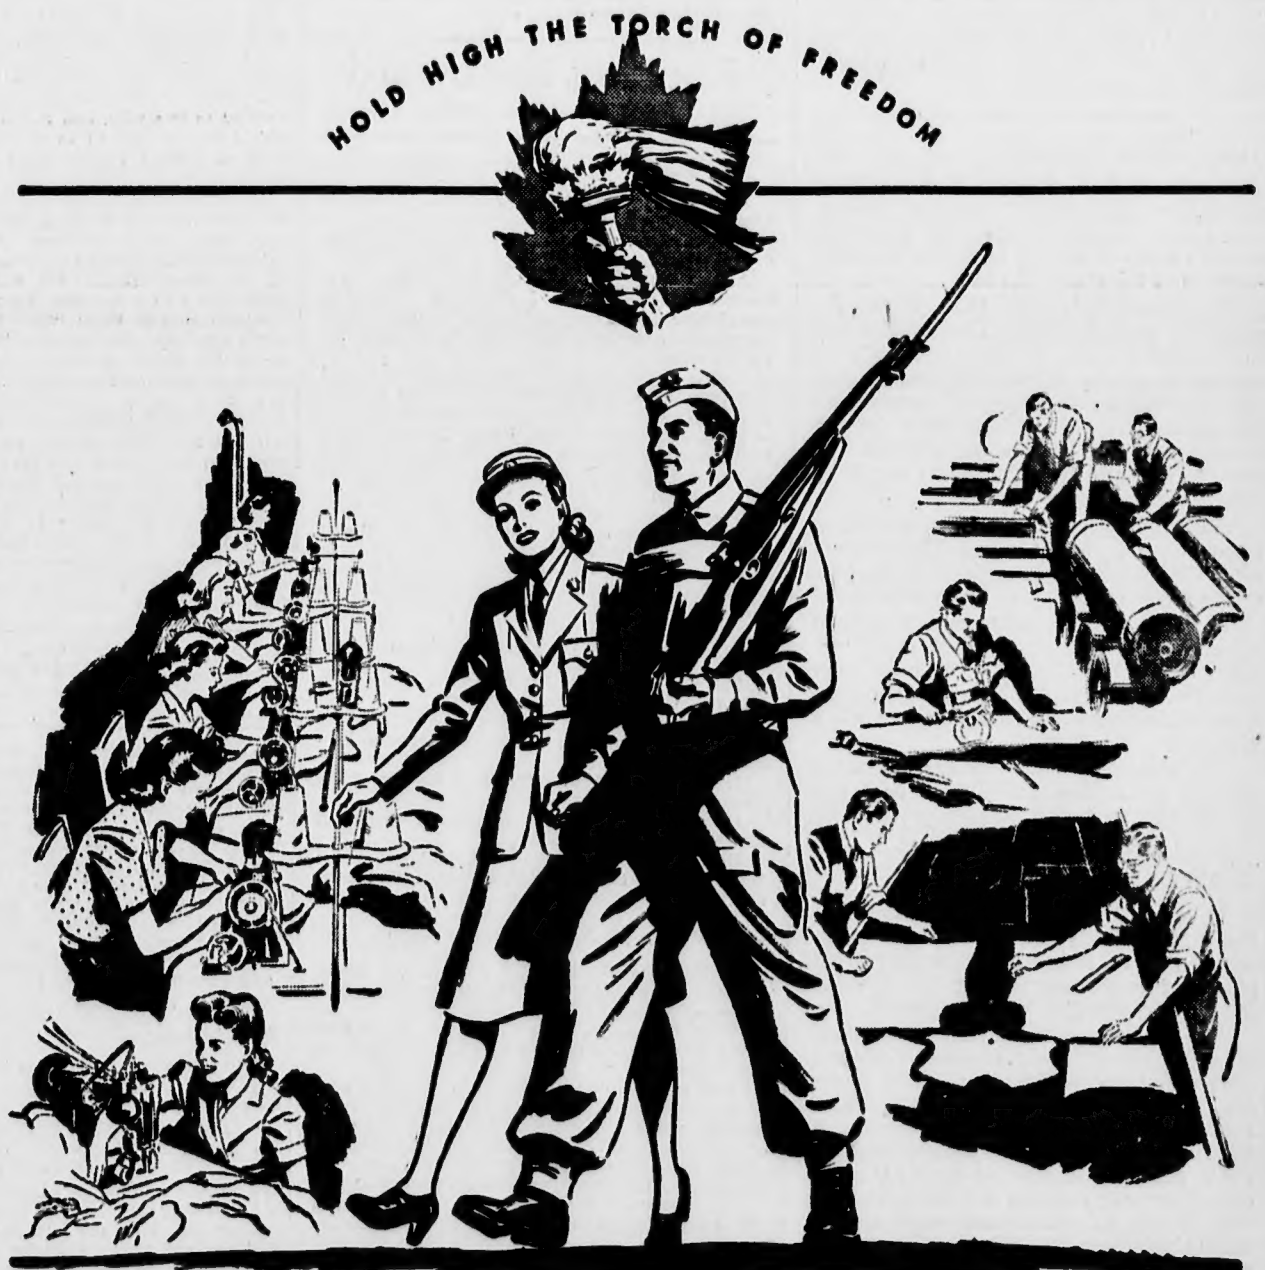

"I have been informed by the president that all unresolved questions have been agreed upon by the carriers and railroad labor organizations and that the agreements have been approved by the wage stabilization director," Stimson said in a statement.

"These agreements provide assurance that there will be no stoppage of rail service and that the employees of the railroads will continue to discharge their responsibilities faithfully and conscientiously so that there may be no diminution in the rising tide of our military might."

Need 30,000 Men

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Marshall E. Dimock of the United States war shipping administration, said last night that 30,000 experienced men must be recruited back into the maritime industry this year to meet current shipping needs.

WHEN CLOTHES BECOME Uniforms

As the "civilian war" develops, uniforms take the place of clothes. Not only armed services but civilian services require identification by uniforms, so the great garment industry is converted to war purposes.

Thousands of Canadian women, toiling to turn out uniforms for others to wear, are contributing beneficially to the total war effort. They are a valuable part of the great, united team of the United Nations.

In the great war drama an army of workers, chiefly women, are engaged in this important task of transforming peace-time "individualists" into uniformed members of war-time organizations.

To women in all lines of industry and in the home, the Bank of Montreal offers co-operation through savings and chequing accounts and other bank services available through hundreds of branches conveniently located.

Community Y.M.C.A.

The good wishes of all Edmonton will follow present attempts to found, in this city, a new community Y.M.C.A. The Mountglen organization of that name is having excellent results in canvassing for family membership, and deservedly so.

The Y.M.C.A. is an excellent and useful organization. To apply the principles of that organization to family life is a wholesome and worthwhile undertaking.

A splendid start has been made in Mountglen.

Many will hope that the time will come when the entire city will be dotted with these community branches, interesting families in the work of an institution that has done much to build up the physical and spiritual life of Canada.

Services Offered

Mr. Cordell Hull is to be congratulated on being slow to take offence. Moscow quite plainly intimated that it did not welcome the suggestion that the United States and Britain try to bring Russia into speaking terms with the Polish government-in-exile. But Mr. Hull overlooked the point and offered the services of Washington in the capacity of intermediary. For that he deserves the thanks of all those who want Allied unity preserved, the principles of the Atlantic Charter respected, and international relations put on a footing of reason.

The offer is an invitation to Moscow to recognize the right of a small country to the same courtesy that would be extended to a large one—a right that will have to be established by usage if force is to be abolished as an instrument of national policy. Its Allies have supposed, and hoped, that Russia had accepted this principle. They will be greatly encouraged, and their friendliness toward Russia greatly strengthened, if they find that this supposition has not been wrong.

Just Red Tape

It was announced some time ago that native-born Canadians would no longer need border crossing cards, after a certain date, to make a visit of less than 29 days duration to the United States.

It now appears that this regulation, strangely enough, means exactly and literally what it says. In other words Canadians who were once United States citizens and have become Canadians by marriage or naturalization will still require border crossing cards. It is more difficult for them to get into the country of their birth than for native-born Canadians.

Now the anomaly, as an anomaly, is merely absurd. But it is more than absurd when the situation applies itself to the American wives of Canadian husbands.

It means that Canadian men who have married American wives—and there are many of them in Canada—will have to go through an entirely different rigmarole than their wives for the purposes of a visit across the border.

The absurdity has doubtless presented itself to the authorities. May it be hoped it will be righted soon?

Unworthy Citizens

Canada, thank heaven, has comparatively few citizens like the one in Vancouver who is said to have swallowed assorted pieces of rough metal with the idea of getting a discharge from the Army.

The great majority of young Canadians take up their military duties cheerfully and with a full sense of responsibility. There are, however, a few like the Vancouver evader. And it has been the experience of military men that these fellows seek to avoid service not because they hate discipline or fear combat, but because they simply fail to understand why a man should be expected to lay aside his personal pursuits and devote himself to the protection of society.

The psychologists have a great many fancy names for people who are without this understanding. They are said to "lack the social sense", for instance, and to be without those normal instincts which impel even the lower animals to defend their own kind.

This lack of social sense, of course, is known to be the motivation of the criminal. That is to say, the criminal and the draft evader share the common quality of rebellion against the usages and amenities of human society.

It does not seem just that those persons who refuse to assume the responsibilities of citizenship should share the privileges of citizenship. It does not seem fair that a man who refuses to fight for our way of life, (that is for the right to vote, to own property and to enjoy all the protections offered by an orderly society) should participate in those rights.

Consolidating the Gain

In his recent broadcast on the battle against inflation, Prime Minister King said the Government believes that, with the co-operation of the public, the cost of living can be held down to the present level. The fore the existing cost-of-living bonuses are to be added to and become part of basic wage rates. No further bonuses are to be paid, the bonus policy being abandoned.

The reasoning is fairly clear. There has been a drastic levelling out of incomes during the war, brought about in two ways. Many low incomes have been supplemented by the cost-of-living bonus. Large incomes have been heavily hit by steeply graded income taxation. As a result there never was a time when the net incomes which earners could spend on themselves have been so near equality. The man with a large income has less of it to spend than formerly; the man of low income has more.

The plan is to "peg" the lower incomes at the level to which they have been raised by the cost-of-living bonus. In other words, to make permanent the higher standard of living thus made possible to people in the poorer paid occupations.

No one imagines of course that all the unjust inequalities have been ironed out of the wage schedule. There still remain classes who should be getting higher pay to put them on a fair footing with others. Provision will have to be made to deal with such cases. But we have gone a long way toward establishing reasonable proportion between incomes, and this measure of equalization is being made to "stick", by raising the basic wage rates.

Canada has had, as Mr. King said, "a planned levelling up and levelling down of spendable incomes on a scale never before attempted in a democratic country". That is true. Those who have benefitted by the levelling-up are not to lose what they have gained. That is why basic wage rates are being established at the level of former basic rates plus cost-of-living bonuses.

The President of the Canadian Medical Association says doctors are not enamoured with the C.C.F. plan to place all medical men in the status of civil servants, allowing general practitioners not more than $3,000 a year and specialists not more than $6,000. Incomes in Canada need to be levelled-up rather than levelled-down.

The Tokyo radio says the United States is now producing ten times as much war material as Japan, and wants to know "Can the United States keep it up?" All the curious party at the microphone has to do to get the answer is wait and see. While he waits he might ask himself how it came about that the Japanese intelligence branch knew as little about the productive resources of the United States as Hitler's intelligence men knew about the manpower resources of Russia.

Looking Backward

From The Bulletin Files

1894: 50 Years Ago

Owing to the low prices, a good deal of wheat is being fed to cattle in this district. J. S. Edmonton and W. Paton returned on Tuesday from a trapping expedition to the Pembina. Bishop Young told a Montreal newspaper that the Beaver Wood Cree and Chipewyan Indians in this diocese number about 7,000. He is now soliciting funds in the east for the new mission at St. Peter's river.

Voting on the erection of the Broadway School district resulted in a verdict to erect the district. It will take in parts of formerly organized districts, and lies between Sturgeon, Poplar Lake, Creuzot, Fort Saskatchewan and Horse Hill districts, thus making a solid block of school districts from Edmonton north and east to the Sturgeon.

Medicine Hat Times: The perennial wind storm took a spurt the other night and blew two coal cars off the track. A veracious old timer says there was about the same time a shower of tomato cans, coal oil barrels, wheel barrows, etc., accompanied by pebbles.

1904: 40 Years Ago

There is talk of reviving the wheat option market in Winnipeg. Canadian curlers won a great victory in the international competition at the Minneapolis bonspiel.

It is reported that ex-President Kruger of the Transvaal is dying in Holland. Colonel Kenna made an important round-up of forces of the Mad Mullah. Hon. Joseph Chamberlain and the Black Watch band are both booked to visit Canada next summer.

1914: 30 Years Ago

In Supreme Court Judge Scott issued an Injunction forbidding the city to increase the amount of sewage emptied into the river. Washington—President Wilson put before Congress his plans for dealing with big business and the trusts.

Five men have been arrested in Winnipeg on a charge of assisting Krafchenko to escape. His counsel and a prison guard are among the five. The city boundaries have been extended to the south to include Allendale, the Rist farm, the Speedway, Manchester and Shaugnessy Heights. In the estimate of Chief Lauder for next year is an item for $30,000 for motor fire equipment.

London—J. Ramsey MacDonald has been called on to form Britain's first Labor government.

London—The only known helium gas supply in the Empire is in Alberta. Experts suggest this will be an important consideration in routing the proposed airship lines, Canada being almost certain of inclusion in the arrangement of schedules.

Paris—The experts committee will recommend the establishment of a German gold bank, in order to stabilize currency and balance the budget.

1934: 10 Years Ago

The U.F.A. convention advised the Brownlee government to make no further provision for the maintenance of Government House.

The civic unemployment works committee tentatively approved a program calling for the expenditure of $4,559,000. This would be part of a three-year plan to which the province and the Dominion would contribute.

Berlin: A new Hitler law bans strikes in Germany and puts the employee in the same relation to his boss that a soldier is to his officer.

Ottawa: The nine provincial premiers and Prime Minister Bennett, flanked by thirty ministers and supported by experts in finance, trade and labor problems, went into conference here on means to improve economic conditions.

Savagery of Huns Is Incredible

Desperate Enemy May Pile Up More Atrocities In Retreat

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK.—Nobody on our side of this war will drop a tear over the finish of Count Ciano. He was a nasty, grafting, continental society louse and a drawing-room parasite, who was way over his head in anything bigger than gin rummy, and would have been at home and a social success in Palm Beach, and some of our more expensive dumps in New York. The only reason he ever amounted to anything in the Fascist regime was that he married Il Duce's daughter, and it was his marriage that finally caused him to fall before a firing squad.

But Ciano's death probably can be taken as a horrifying promise of things to come as the Germans fall back into their own country, because if Hitler would kill Mussolini's own son-in-law and leading protégé, even though Ciano had backslid, what will he hesitate to do? The Nazis are desperate men now who know that they must die for crimes already done, and it is reasonable to expect that they will destroy everything behind them in their retreat to doom. Ciano had served the Germans rather well and had lived on terms of personal acquaintance, although, of course not of friendship with Hitler, who never has had a friend even in his own party, and if Il Duce had not been a prisoner, himself, living on table-scrap and borrowed time, he undoubtedly would have been allowed to live in some prison until the arrival of the Allies. But Mussolini had no power to save him and he died like Hitler's own old comrades who went out in the purge.

This execution is shocking because of the family relationship involved for civilian human beings do not execute their own kinsmen and the Italians are as sentimental as the rest of us about family. In this savage killing, Hitler acted in the Duce's name and thus kicked the Italians in the teeth so God only knows what he will do in his retreat. He might even shoot the Pope for having correspondence with the enemy and dynamite St. Peter's and the Vatican as he blew up the postoffice in Naples. It is a refresher, on the ghastliness which the world underestimated when Hitler early in his career destroyed a Polish countess accused of spying by having her head chopped off with a long-handled meat axe in the hands of an executioner wearing formal evening dress. Lidice, the long, cold pogrom of the German Jews, the slaughters of hostages, occurred when Hitler was strong and on the offensive. The sort of enemy that the normal mind pictures would begin to moderate his ferocity in retreat in the hope of saving his people, even if he knew he, himself was doomed. But Hitler set out to rule the world or obliterate as much of civilization and its personalities and works as he could, and there is no reason to expect that he will go easy, even to save the Germans from obloquy as long as the world lasts.

To Hitler there is no such thing as family. He has been estranged

Caring For Painted Woodwork

Remove Fingerprints From Varnished Surfaces With Oiled Duster

By MARY ALICE QUAYNE

When it comes to our homes we all try to be practical, but it is too bad that dark stained woodwork isn't a permanent style. For no one can deny that it is much easier to take care of, and there is no doubt about it.

But then if all we really cared about were stern practicality, we would dress, eat and live a lot differently in every way. The fact is that painted woodwork is fresh and pleasant to live with, and man has always been willing to go to quite a lot of trouble for the sake of beauty.

Of course in that mythical post-war world we hear so much about, marvellous plastic surfaces are promised which if we can believe all we hear will all but clean themselves. In the meantime we will have to get along with the woodwork and paint finishes that are in the realm of reality. And they have their own advantages.

Wash With Soap

If you have light painted woodwork, the better care you take of it, the less repair you will have to face. The easiest way to protect it is to train the family to open doors by the knobs. But chances are that the best training will still leave fingerprints on the door frames for you to wash off.

If the paint is a washable, high gloss enamel, this is an easy job, and dull gloss enamel is hard if you don't let it get too dirty. Just wash with a mild soap and water and rinse with a cloth which has been wrung out of clear water, then wipe with a dry cloth.

If that doesn't do the job, use a paint cleaner. Here is a word of caution—if you don't let the woodwork go too long it won't ever be very difficult to clean.

A good protection for the paint in the places that get hard use, such as the door facings near the knobs, and the window sills, is to coat them with wax so these spots can be kept clean without scrubbing the paint off.

Use of Wax

Another important place to wax is the woodwork around the fireplace if it smokes and the best of them do at times. And, by all means, wax the stair post and rails if they are light in color.

If your woodwork is waxed all over, and either painted or stained woodwork can be kept this way, then it is much easier to keep off the grime. Dust it regularly, and when it needs re-waxing, here is what to do: If you have used self-polishing wax, remove old worn coat with warm, soapy water; if you have used liquid wax, the old coat is removed by rubbing with a cloth damp with more liquid wax. Don't confuse self-polishing wax and liquid wax because each has a different base.

Varnished woodwork is best kept by regular cleaning with an oil-treated dust cloth. When the finish becomes very dirty, wash with a cooled solution made of one part of hot water with one tablespoon of turpentine and three tablespoons of linsed oil. Wring a cloth out of this solution and wipe off a small length of woodwork at a time, drying at once, then polish with a soft cloth dampened with lemon oil.

Scratch Remedy

Small scratches on furniture often disappear if they are rubbed with nut meats. The oil in the nuts darkens and conceals the scratch. An oily nut like a pecan or butter-nut is best.

Cut the kernel with a knife and rub the cut side into the scratch. Then polish the surface of the wood with a soft, dry cloth. A mixture of two-thirds linsed oil and one-third turpentine is also good for rubbing scratches out of sight, as is a reliable commercial furniture polish.

Deep scratches, scars or holes need filling before polishing. A commercial crack filler or a home-made paste made of powdered pumice, clear varnish and just enough oil paint to give a color that matches the wood may be used. Press the paste into the scratch, then smooth the surface.

Let the paste harden, and rub smooth with the finest steel wool or sandpaper. Finally, apply furniture polish.

The hard-to-handle element in Australian prices is imports, which have risen 75 per cent in price since the war started. Clothes rationing was a direct result of the United Kingdom's rigid control of cotton exports in April, 1942. Household draperies and towels are very short in Australia, a sore point with housewives. But civilian production has fallen below the danger level, according to an official statement. Withdrawal of 20,000 men from the army and the same number from munitions production indicates how Australia country and like it, then what is wrong with us accepting our bilingual language as peculiar to our country and like it as our Canadian language and teach it from the rivers to the end of the sea.

It might be well for some of our people to bear in mind that the French language was planted on Canadian soil long before there was a Parliament Hill, a Canadian Pacific or Dominion of Canada.

After the battle on the Plains of Abraham in 1759 the people for years were trekking back to France while the British had no people to take their place in New France. When in 1763 the government of Great Britain went to Paris (please bear in mind it was not the government of France going to London) and in Paris the government of Great Britain sat around the conference table with the government of France where jointly and agreeably they worked out and signed the Paris agreement in which the government of Great Britain guaranteed that the defeated people should have the freest use of their French language from generation to generation if they were allowed to and did remain on the soil of New France and it was on that understanding that they remained in what is now Quebec.

That Paris agreement was passed by the same parliament of Great Britain who in turn passed the Quebec Act in 1774, the Constitution Act in 1791, the Union Act in 1840 and the British North American Act in 1867, and it might be well to bear in mind what the Parliament of Great Britain passes stands, for time is not eternity.

Australia and War Problems

By B. T. RICHARDSON

MELBOURNE, Aus.—In its fight against inflation, Australia's price control has been modelled upon Canada's retail price ceiling. "We adopted a ceiling somewhat like yours," said D. B. Copland, Commonwealth prices commissioner, as we sat in the study of his campus-home at Melbourne University, where he is professor of economics. The line of price control is being held. It is combined in anti-inflation policy with the highest level of taxation in Australia's history, with energetic bond-selling campaigns to pipe off surplus purchasing power, and ever-widening ration control of civilian goods. The strategy of battle against inflation in a country that wages it with determination is much the same as in Canada.

Australia came closer to being a battlefield than did Canada. Its people will always remember that in the crisis they endured the stern discipline of wartime controls with little or no margin of reserve. The price ceiling was established on April 12, 1943, after previous controls had allowed a retail price rise of 22.6 per cent since September, 1939. Since the ceiling, the index surged up to 24.8 per cent last June, and fell back to 23.7 per cent in September. Any further increases in costs will be met by government subsidies, if such increases cannot be absorbed by economies in production or paring down of profits. Prices have already been moved back on potatoes, tea and clothing and textiles.

To clarify the ceiling, the prices commission is defining maximum prices and recently issued a list of 2,800 grocery items. The margin of profit is fixed directly on many items.

The hard-to-handle element in Australian prices is imports, which have risen 75 per cent in price since the war started. Clothes rationing was a direct result of the United Kingdom's rigid control of cotton exports in April, 1942. Household draperies and towels are very short in Australia, a sore point with housewives. # The Bulletin's SPORT SHOW by Hal Dean

SPORTS EDITOR

COMING visit of the Currie Barracks basketball quintet on Friday will afford fans an opportunity to appraise the relative chances of the two teams in provincial playdowns. The Calgary soldiers are reputed to be the class of the league in the city and U.S. Engineers, one of Edmonton's entries in the annual playoffs are still unbeaten in addition to being leaders of the local senior circuit.

There will also be a chance to compare the class of ball being played in the city and service leagues, for the U.S. Army Air Corps and Quartermasters will hook up in the first half of the double header. Air Corps last week defeated No. 4 I.T.S., the team which had comparatively easy sailing during the pre-Christmas part of the service schedule.

Next week's hoop games in the city league will be played in the new Normal School gym in Garneau. On Tuesday night four "A" section clubs will be in action: Yanks versus Varsity and Engineers versus Quartermasters. The second double bill will be on Thursday, with Y.M.C.A. playing Bechtel, Price, Callahan and Latter Day Saints opposing U.S. Station Hospital.

MAY PLAY IN LLOYDMINSTER

Canadians Athletic Club and Navy juniors meet for the second time this season at 119 Street tonight. Canucks shot the good ship Nonsuch full of holes last Wednesday, the final figures being 9-1, and so the Sailors will be back with different ideas for this evening.

What might turn out to be a pre-Memorial playoff clash between Canadians and Saskatoon Lions is reported to be a distinct possibility. Lloydminster has come up with a proposal whereby the two teams would play an exhibition in the Border Town on Saturday, Jan. 29. The

THE DUCK HUNTER

The poor duck hunter in his blind is chilled in front and wet behind. It's seven hours since he fed, and twenty since he's been to bed.

It cost him near a hundred bucks. To hide himself from silly ducks. Which, presently, are day dawns dim, will rise and hide themselves from him.

Whoever is the author of the foregoing gem—we're sorry we don't know him—knows his duck hunting. Brothers, ain't it the truth? From Athabasca to Alabama, echo answers, "Yeah!"

Edmonton Rinks Doing Well

Chinook Also Taking Part In Calgary's Annual 'Spiel

CALGARY, Jan. 19.—(CP)—With the natural ice at the Glencoe and North Hill rinks out of commission due to chinook weather, committee in charge of the 40th annual bonspiel of the Alberta branch, Royal Caledonian Curling Club, decided to have regular day and night shifts every two hours on the artificial ice at the Arena.

Calgary Cagers Play Engineers Westglen Friday

The Calgary Currie Barracks basketball squad is coming to Edmonton to meet the Edmonton Men's Basketball League leaders, the U.S. Engineers in an exhibition game at the Westglen high school gym on Friday night.

The game will be the second half of a doubleheader that is scheduled to start at 7 o'clock. U.S. Quartermasters, the first team in the local circuit, other than the Engineers, to beat the Yanks will take on the latter in the curtain raiser of the exhibition twin bill.

This should be one of the best cage programs put on in Westglen this year as Currie is said to have lots of good basketball material and the Engineers have yet to be defeated in a league game or an exhibition.

The double no-hit, no-run baseball twirler said further arm examinations would be necessary and that he would be sent to New York today for X-rays and 48-hour observation.

"All Commandos Aren't in Army"

Combines Prefer Rugged Hockey

By PTE. TOM FOLEY

Public Relations, Currie Barracks, CALGARY, Jan. 19.—The Navy-Air Force Tecumseh Mustangs, the most recent exponents of the "Knock 'em down, drag 'em out" type of hockey in this neighborhood are a very rough and tough bunch of boys. In fact, after watching them rough and tumble the Currie army around to the tune of 7-2 on Saturday night, it became quite evident that all the Commandos aren't in the army.

As a matter of fact, it is very obvious that such substantial citizens as Wares, Dertell, Slobodian, Schriener, Cairns, Brownridge and associates are built much more on Commando lines than the Curries are a whole.

A quick survey reveals that outside of blocky Bobby Carse, Currie's Commando number one, and Tommy Anderson and Doug Lane the rest of the club are a gang of fast-skating fellows who could go around about objects like Wares, Slobodian and company with

PIPER LIKES PASSERS

Elmer Piper, the Currie coach, expresses himself to the effect that he doesn't "want bodycheckers if I can get some guys that pass the puck." Elmer has never been a keen fan of the "knock 'em down, drag 'em out" formula. Piper has dedicated his hockey life in trying to prove that passing the puck into the goalmouth is much more effective than trying to pass individuals into the third row.

During the next few days Piper will undoubtedly spend his time in establishing a "pass that puck, lay off the bodychecks" policy for the future. He hopes that a passing attack will have more success against the Combines than trying to out-bodycheck the master bodycheckers.

With a 7-2 victory under their belts the Combines decide have the first round. Piper's charges intend to make the next encounter a battle between the two different styles of hockey—it should be a whole of a hockey game.

"Whitey" Rimstad's left wrist is broken in three places and he likely won't see any more action this

South Siders Blank Mapleos In Midget Game

Scoring a goal in both the first and second periods and adding three more in the final stanza, South Side Midgets blanked Mapleos 5-0 in their league game on South Side Tuesday night.

Harvey Silzer netted unassisted after eight minutes in the initial period and Frank Crozier raised the count to 2-0 at 12 minutes in the middle session.

Silzer banged in his second goal on George Ego's pass in the last frame and at 16 minutes Neil McDonald boosted the South Side total to 4-0.

Gordon Greenwood and Frank Crozier combined for the last marker with two minutes to go.

Canadians Beat Stadium Flyers By Score of 4-2

Canadian Athletic Club midgets defeated Stadium Flyers, their fellow club-members by a score of 4-2 on 119 Street rink in Tuesday night's league game.

Canadians went into the lead after three minutes when Taylor scored from Jerry Palmer and Bob Fleming. Doug Campbell added another in the last minute of the period on Clayton Richmond's pass. Frank Feranuk cut the margin in half by netting for the Flyers midway through the second period and Nadeau deadlocked the count on a three-way play with Boyd and Pearce at the three-minute mark in the last stanza.

Bob Jowett fired the winning goal with the help of Taylor, with five minutes to go, and he clinched the decision, netting another on Bob Fleming's pass.

LINEUPS

Canadians: Kunitsch, Palmer, Davis, Fleming, Richmond, Campbell, McClocklin, Jowett, Taylor.

Meet the Wheelers

Pte. Jack Forsey
—FORMER TORONTO LEAF AND CENTRE STAR

—Canadian Army (M.D. 13) Cartoon.

Leadership of the Alberta Service senior hockey loop will be at stake when Red Deer Army Wheelers and Tecumseh-Mustangs meet at Red Deer on Thursday night. One of the leaders of the soldier drive to gain league leadership will be Jack Forsey who, just one week ago, scored the tying and deciding goals when Wheelers stopped Currie 5-4. Forsey, a private in Army life, stands five feet nine inches, and weighs 170 pounds. In 1935-36 he played with the Kimberley Dynamiters, winners of the Allan cup, and also the world's championship at London. For the following three seasons he performed with Earl Court Rangers at London, England. Returning to Canada, he was with Sherbrooke Red Raiders in 1939-40, Cornwall Flyers the following year, and with Providence Reds in 1941-42. Last season he was with the Reds, and also with Toronto Maple Leafs.

SASKATOON, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Saskatoon H.M.C.S. Unicorns maintained their undefeated record and ran their string of victories to nine with an easy 11-3 decision over Flin Flon Bombers in a Saskatchewan Senior Hockey League

On Top

After trailing along in third place within striking distance of the top, Lorne Carr netted three goals for the Toronto Leafs against Boston last night and these along with an assist, lifted him one point above Bill Cowley, out through injury. Carr, a former Calgary hit the N.H.L. in 1934-35 as a member of the New York Americans, with whom he played for six seasons before being traded to the Maple Leafs.

Passes Final

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Fritzie Zivic, former welterweight champion, passed his final draft examination yesterday but the United States army deferred his induction for at least 30 days because of a broken hand suffered in his losing battle Friday night at Detroit with Jake LaMotta.

Scores K.O.

BALTIMORE, Jan. 19.—(AP)—Joe Baksi, 212, Kumpont, Pa. heavyweight, knocked out Dan Merritt, 201½, of Chicago, in the Coliseum last night. The Pennsylvania slugger has a Madison Square Garden date next month with Tami Mauriello.

Pace Modern Life Too Hot For Deer

LOS ANGELES, Calif., Jan. 19 (AP)—The pace of modern life was too much for the young buck deer from Griffith Park. He escaped and eluded pursuers for several hours by hurdlng over fences, dodging traffic on crowded boulevards and ducking up alleys. Finally headed for a store window, he saw his reflection and put on the four-hoof brakes just in time. Exhausted, he turned around and meekly accompanied keepers back home.

Veteran Leaf Bags 3 Goals, Helps in One

BOSTON, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Lorne Carr, Toronto's veteran right winger, bagged three goals and an assist to become the National Hockey League's highest point scorer last night while his Maple Leafs were overwhelming the Boston Bruins 7-2 before a 13,500 capacity crowd at the Boston Garden.

Carr opened the one-sided contest with a total of 49 points, three less than Boston's veteran Bill Cowley, who was put out of action 10 days ago when he suffered a shoulder separation against the Maple Leafs in Toronto. Carr's total of 53 gave him a point lead on Cowley, who is expected to be sidelined for several weeks more.

The Bruins had to use five of their farmhands of the Boston Olympic Club in the Eastern Amateur League including goalie Maurice Courteau, who filled in for Bert Gardiner, detained in Philadelphia by his wife's illness.

Courteau got off to a rocky start and four Toronto pucks, the first two of which were fired by Carr, went through him during the opening period. The other Toronto scorers in that frame were Babe Pratt and Bob Davidson.

Carr completed his "hat trick" early in the second period and during the final, Elwyn Morris and Ted Kennedy provided the remaining Toronto counters. Both of the Boston tallies were supplied by Art Jackson. His first goal was a rink-length solo effort in the second period and during the third session he battled in Herb Cain's rebound.

The victory increased the Maple Leafs' second place lead to two full games over the Bruins, who had to operate without the services of the versatile Busher Jackson most of the way. The veteran had to retire during the opener, after he suffered a wrenched knee and an elbow injury in a backboards crash.

Harley Miller Scores 18 As Engineers Beat Saints

LED by Harley Miller with 18 points, the U.S. Engineers overcame a strong Latter Day Saints team, 45-21, in the second game of the Edmonton Men's Basketball League doubleheader at Westglen Tuesday night. Aircraft Repair stopped Y.M.C.A. 34-18 in the initial contest.

Engineers' victory was their seventh in as many starts and it enabled them to increase their lead in "A" section over Yanks and L.D.S., who are now tied for second place.

Miller, John Gullekson and Earl Ayers came through in fine style for the winners, counting 43 of the 45 points, Bob Chamness being the only other Engineer to drop the ball through the hoop. Ayers turned in one of his best performances of the season and marked up 15, Gullekson getting 10.

In leading the points parade with 18, Miller made eight of 10 field tries, mostly on long shots, and scored twice on free shots.

Dee Elfeberry also turned in a sparkling performance to pace the Saints with 11 markers, the others going to Evan Erickson, Bernard Critchfield, Vic Wood and Leon Jenkins.

FIRST QUARTER CLOSE

The teams put on the best exhibition of basketball in the first quarter, although the Engineers outscored the losers 12-6.

Erickson opened the counting when he made good a free shot to give L.D.S. a 1-0 lead, Miller came back and tied it up and Chamness put the U.S. soldiers out in front for the first time, 3-1. Critchfield dropped in a field goal a few seconds afterwards and Elfeberry checked Gullekson at centre floor, raced down and scored to put the Saints ahead again, 5-3.

Miller deadlocked the counting again when he went through on a solo effort, displaying some very fine dribbling, but Jenkins added one for the losers on a free shot to make it 6-5 for Latter Day Saints.

Miller then tallied a pair of field goals in short order, dropping in a long shot and taking a pass from Gullekson. He added another point shortly after a L.D.S. timeout and Ayers tapped in a rebound before the quarter ended to put the Engineers ahead by six points.

INCREASE LEAD

The losers slowed down considerably in the second quarter and the Engineers added 10 to L.D.S.'s six to make the scoreboard read 22-12 at the half time. Miller gave his best performance in the first half and it wasn't until midway in the second session that he missed a field shot.

The winners travelled at a fast pace in the third frame and counted 11 points before the Saints got to the basket for a single point, the score then being 33-12. But before the session ended the league leaders added six and the losers four.

There was very little excitement

Skiing Tonight At Connor's Hill

The Edmonton Ski Club wishes to announce there will be night skiing tonight at the Connor's ski hill. The club members were very busy over the week-end getting the hill in shape, after hauling numerous loads of snow to the hill by truck.

The flood lights are all set and there will be lots of refreshments at the food bar in the cabin. It is hoped that all skiers will take advantage of this opportunity.

Tony Golab Only Slightly Injured

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—(CP)—FO. Anthony (Tony) Golab, former Ottawa gridiron ace, suffered only slight injuries to his arms and legs when shown down in action on Italy, Jan. 8, his wife was officially informed last night.

Today's Sport Parade

By Jack Cuddy

Exclusive to The Edmonton Bulletin

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Mark Gallard and Eric Baume, two Australian newspaper men, predicted today that baseball will have an annual "galloping world series" within seven or eight years after the war.

Neil Memorial Being Dedicated To 4,100 Boxers

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(AP)—

The 4,100 United States boxers who traded in their gloves for service uniforms will receive the Edward J. Neil Memorial Plaque tonight as boxing's "men of the year."

Departing from the custom of making the award to an individual, the boxing writers association of New York will present the plaque, given annually to the man or men who have done the most for the sport, at a dinner in Ruppert's brewery.

Awarded in memory of the Associated Press sports writer and war correspondent who was killed during the war in Spain, the trophy this time will be accepted for the boxers in service by a group of officers representing all branches of the armed forces. After the presentation, it will be hung in the lobby of Madison Square Garden in the name of the fighters in action, of whom 36 are past or present champions. Thirty have been killed and 11 are missing in action.

The writers also are making a boxing long-service award to Nat Fleischer, publisher of Ring Magazine.

Former Mayor James J. Walker will present the Neil trophy to a group which includes Rear Admiral L. S. Covel and Lt. Cmdr. Jack Dempsey of the Coast Guard; Capt. Charles O. Humphries, newly appointed athletic director at the U.S. Naval Academy at Annapolis; Col. H. L. Parsons and Sgt. Barney Ross of the marines; Capt. Jim Braddock of the army and Lt. Cmdr. E. F. Yeager and Lieut. Benny Leonard of the Maritime Service.

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—(CP)—

A week ago a New York Herald Tribune sports writer discovered Sam Langford — the "Boston tar baby" whose great boxing thrills fight fans three decades ago — living blind, alone and poverty-stricken in a rooming house in Harlem.

Langford, born in Weymouth, N.S., in 1886, fought and beat such greats of his day as Jack Johnson, Harry Wills and Fred Fulton. And he generally gave away pounds when he entered the ring.

But he absorbed so much punishment from the heavier men that he went blind and began to eke out a living on a few dollars a month from a foundation for the blind. It seemed as if his many admirers had forgotten him.

The story of how Sam is still cheerful despite all the ill-fortune that has followed him since he was the darling of the prize-ring was circulated widely. Many who had seen him fight and many more who had only heard him named as one of the greatest boxers of all-time felt a sharp twinge of regret.

But it didn't stop there. Sports Editor Stanley Woodward of the Herald Tribune has been deluged by letters from fight fans asking what they can do to help Sam Langford. A committee of citizens is meeting with Woodward to formulate plans for a better future for Sam. Details of the committee, including the name of the administrator of the fund, will be announced later.

Still Tops Assist Column

Cowley's Total of 52 Is Finally Overcome

MONTREAL, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Bill Cowley's mark of 52 scoring points in the National Hockey League was finally overcome last night when Lorne Carr picked up four to bring his official scoring total to 53.

The official statistics released today, second weekly listing since Cowley was injured at Toronto, show him still in second place, however, one point ahead of Herbie Cain, also of Boston.

Bill Cowley

Elmer Lach of Canadiens is next eight points out of third place, and trailed by a point by Bill Mosienko of Chicago. Gus Bodnar of the Leafs holds down sixth place with 41 and Doug Bentley is seventh with 40.

Cowley is still ahead in the assist column, however, his 33 playing passes giving him a margin of two over Elmer Lach and four over Buddy O'Connor of Canadiens. Cain leads in goals with 28, while Carr has 24 and Mosienko, Gerry Heffernan of Canadiens and Mud Bruneteau of Detroit are tied with 20 each. Penalty leader? It's Mike McMahon of Canadiens by a minute, with 50 minutes in majors and minors, compared with 49 for Harold Jackson of Detroit.

Individual scoring records are:

Just Part of Iceman's Grief

By CHARLES CHAMBERLAIN

CHICAGO, Jan. 19.—(AP)—All this you hear about cutting out paper dollies is certainly tame stuff, Earl the Iceman is convinced. Earl has ducked more paper airplanes than anyone else in the world. He supervises a clean-up crew at Chicago Stadium. At hockey games it takes a 12-man gang to pick up whatever the fans throw down on the rink—and that's all but the seats which are securely bolted to the floor.

CANADIAN SPORTSHOTS

By CHARLIE EDWARDS

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Quick Hemmingway, the smelling salts! Either bowling or curling are quite complicated enough for this operator but the citizens of Abernethy, Sask., have devised a combination of both. Pat Ferguson turned out a set of bowling pins in his carpenter shop and, with the fellow conspirators, devised the new game.

The pins were set halfway down the curling ice with two players stationed at each end. Strikes, spare and all bowling counts were possible with rocks going from end to end. Either five pins or 10 pins could be used.

The report to Dave (Regina Leader-Post) Dryburgh did not give the new game a name but we suggest "durdling", a combination of trundling and curling, and hope the fans don't sour on us.

Puck Pastor: Remember the case of George Abbott, the unknown who substituted in Boston Bruins goal when Bert Gardiner was ill last November? Trainer Win Green of Boston says: "You know he turned out to be a high-class guy and the boys felt their necks when they discovered later he was an ordained minister. Some of the dressing-room language was pretty steep."

Disrespectful: Syl Apps, Billy Taylor, Gordon Drillon and Hank Gaudy should have introduced themselves as former National Hockey League stars when they played for the Simcoe Army team against Brantford No. 5 S.F.T.S. the other night. The Brantford boys apparently didn't know they were supposed to be smothered by the big stars and Brantford won 13-10. They played rough, too, and Taylor was taken out with an injury early in the game. Apps scored four goals and Drillon five.

Round and About: Lieut. Terry Reardon, former Boston and Canadiens hockey star, has arrived overseas. . . New the Winnipeg R.C.A.F. senior team has been broken up by headquarters order, name players Pete Langelle, Wally Stanowsky, Alf Pike, Paul Platz, Butch Marchant and Scotty Milne are playing in the R.C.A.F. inter-unit intermediate league at Winnipeg.

Earl the iceman recalls one night when his crew was almost hit by a heaving making a swan dive from the balcony. "Eggs—a dime a dozen," Earl the iceman shrugs. "Oranges, apples, grapefruit, slices of bread—some day we'll get the knives and forks. If it wasn't for rationing. . ."

Tobin tells this one: "The hawks were in Boston in 1937 when what should splash down on the ice but a big hunk of beef steak, uncooked. Taffy Abel, who was playing defence for us, picked it up, made a howl towards the gallery, and carted it off. He had it fried and ate it after the game."

"Then there was the time in Montreal. Someone tossed an alarm clock on the rink. Thought it was time we woke up, I guess."

But there's one thing not even

Leaf Midgets Only Unbeaten Team in Loop

Maple Leafs, also with a perfect record, ousted E.A.C. midgets from the unbeaten ranks when they handed the young Clubmen a 5-2 setback in Tuesday night's league hockey game at 96 Street rink. Both teams have won four games, the Leafs having played one less than their opponents.

Shell sent the E.A.C. boys ahead early in the first period, but the Leafs came back with two near the close of the session. Grant counted with the help of Stewart and Colingwood and Barry gave the Leafs the lead on Patterson's pass.

Stewart raised the advantage another goal on a relay from Krook midway through the second stanza. Jeske combined with Slattery for an E.A.C. marker in the final period, but power plays backfired twice and Leafs ran in two more.

On the first breakaway, Patterson beat Shields with the assistance of Smith and Stewart turned the trick alone on the second.

Strike Reduces Coal Production

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Alberta and British Columbia coal output was affected by a November strike and Canadian production was thus reduced to 1,455,309 tons from 1,645,387 in the corresponding month in 1942, the Dominion bureau of Statistics reported yesterday.

Output during the first 11 months of 1943 totalled 16,172,213 tons, a reduction of 5.5 per cent from the 1942 total.

1943 Dairy Production Reaches All-Time High

Aggregate Value Reaches $34,181,500; Previous Top Figure Was Reached in 1920

Value of Alberta dairy products for the year 1943, standing at $34,181,500, sets an all-time high in provincial records, Hon. D. Bruce MacMillan, minister of agriculture, announced Wednesday.

Pentecostal Church Holds Annual Meet

The annual congregational meeting of the Edmonton Pentecostal church was held Tuesday evening and the Rev. D. N. Buntain, general superintendent of the Pentecostal Assemblies of Canada, presided.

The two retiring members of the deacons' board, H. Cornish and A. Gaetz, were returned to office by acclamation. A. Gaetz was also appointed to the office of Sunday School superintendent.

A successful financial year was reported by the treasurer, J. Pike, who pointed out that the most encouraging development was in the Home and Foreign Missions department.

The report of the building fund revealed that final payment has been made on the mortgage and the mortgage was burned on the last Sunday of 1943.

Miss L. Dickinson and Miss B. McIvor gave reports on the work done in the Sunday school and W.

The 1943 figure stands $2,500,000 higher than the 1942 value of provincial dairy products, and breaks the 1920 record figure of $34,000,000.

During 1943, creamery butter production records also were broken, with 38,640,893 pounds produced, with the average factory selling value at 31.75 cents per pound, compared to production of 11,821,291 pounds produced in 1920, at an actual selling value of 55.45 cents per pound.

The estimated value of milk, cream and dairy butter sold off Alberta farms during the year amounts to $21,435,000, which greatly exceeds any previous farm values. The figure includes Dominion government producer subsidies, amounting to approximately $3,103,000, which were not paid during the previous record year of 1920.

Pilot Finishes Hazardous Trip To Northland

Successfully completing a hazardous "hospital" flight to the remote Bathurst Inlet post east of Coppermine in the Arctic regions, Capt. Ernest Boffa of C.P. Air Lines was back at Coppermine Tuesday, it was learned here Wednesday.

Boffa left Yellowknife last weekend on the annual mail flight to Coppermine. This year he had an additional assignment. Mrs. Manning, wife of the Hudson's Bay Co. factor at Bathurst Inlet, had to be brought out for hospitalization.

Because of dense fogs and changing weather conditions the flight to Bathurst is still considered hazardous by veteran north airmen.

There are also no aerial navigation aids.

Boffa had a wireless operator aboard the ski-equipped plane for the flight to Bathurst.

It is expected that Mrs. Manning will be brought to Edmonton Wednesday or Thursday by a regular C.P. Air Lines plane from Norman Wells.

Mail flights to Coppermine on the Arctic coast, east of Aklavik are made just once a year.

Sale of the southeast corner of Jasper avenue and 100 street for approximately $50,000 by the estate of R. G. Hulbert, to the Hulbert Properties, Ltd., was announced Wednesday. This is the second major property deal made since Jan. 1, 1944.

E. Nobles reported on work done among the prisoners.

Mrs. W. Boyle and Mrs. E. Taylor reviewed the work done by the Women's Prayer group and Mrs. C. Campbell reported on work done among the men of the armed forces.

Will Be Prominent at Opening

DAVID URE, M.L.A.

The motion to adopt the Speech from the Throne at the session of the legislature which will open Feb. 10 will be moved by David Ure, Social Credit M.L.A. for Red Deer, who was elected to his seat in the by-election of Dec. 18. The motion will be seconded by S. A. Berg, Social Credit member for Alexander, who has sat in the house since the party came into power in 1935. Announcement that these members had been selected to move and second the motion was made Wednesday by Premier Ernest Manning.

S. A. BERG, M.L.A.

Complete Modern Laundry Serves United States Army In Far Northern Territory

A fully-equipped, completely modern laundry, operated by the U.S. Army Quartermaster Corps, now is open for business on the banks of the historic Lewes river, near McCrae, in the Yukon Territory.

The new plant has two seventy-five horsepower boilers, only one of which currently is in operation, burning coal for fuel. The other boiler is being equipped to burn oil and will be ready for use in the near future, army authorities announced.

"Factory-style" planning is in effect throughout the plant. Wide entry doors through which trucks bring their loads of laundry are next to the marking machines. A battery of six of these machines provides quick, permanent stamping of all garments received. From 12 to 15 bundles of clothing can be marked each hour in this way.

Wheeled QMC laundry baskets roll from the receiving and marking departments to the adjacent series of four wash wheels. Three of these washers are belt-driven from the common power source, while the fourth has its own motor. One hundred seventy-five sheets may be put into these wash wheels at a time.

A unit of four extractors rough-dries the clean laundry, and nearby is a battery of eight driers which complete the transition from a pile of dirty laundry to sparkling white clothing.

Three check-out men handle the laundry from this point. Their department is next to the receiving section, constituting the final link in the laundry's assembly-line process.

In a separate building, a short distance from the laundry, a modern dry-cleaning plant also is in operation, authorities revealed.

Two complete wash units, in series, comprise the initial steps in the cleaning process. Lt. H. E. Herron, Q.M.C., the officer directly in charge of the cleaning plant, explains that the washers are connected in series for the purpose of pumping cleaning solvent back and forth.

Four tumblers, or driers, form the next unit. Here the freshly cleaned garments are partially dried. An imposing array of pressers complete the dry cleaning operation.

When field jackets are cleaned, a special wash wheel replaces the water-repellant solution, restoring the garments to their original state. Specially-built dust-proof boxes are used to ship the cleaned and pressed garments to units many miles up and down the Alaska Highway. Approximately three-score men of the laundry detachment live in the newly-constructed barracks on the river bank.

Falling out of a window in Room No. 3, Jasper Rooms, 9667 Jasper Avenue, Calvin J. Sampson, Lone Rock, Sask., dropped 25 feet to the ground, at 9:05 p.m. Tuesday, according to city police.

Sampson, who gave his age as 74 years, was taken to the Royal Alexandra hospital. He complained of a sore shoulder and sore left ankle.

Promoted

Flying Officer H. Keith Smeltzer, son of Gordon Smeltzer of 10237 125 street, who has been promoted to that rank while serving overseas. FO, Smeltzer was born in Morrin, and came to Edmonton in 1928. He attended Oliver public and Westglen high schools here and enlisted in the R.C.A.F. in January 1942. He trained in Ontario and Montreal, and received his wings and commission in Feb. 1943. He went overseas later the same year.

Declare Dividend For Credit Union

The annual meeting of the Bacon Savings and Credit Union held in the Calder Community Hall Monday night voted a two per cent dividend to each shareholder and a return to borrowers of 15 per cent of the interest paid in 1943.

R. Hurman, president, reported on activities of the union during the past year and explained reasons for recommending the increase. He said the borrowers created the earnings and should be given first consideration and at the same time a fair dividend should be given the shareholders.

A. Foxhall and W. Rankin gave reports of the credit and supervisory committees and the balance sheet was explained by T. Houghton, secretary. W. Rankin and O. Ireland were elected to the board of directors. G. W. Willis was elected to the credit committee.

The Inquiring Reporter

THE QUESTION
Do you think we are over the worst part of winter now?

THE ANSWERS
MRS. ROBERT BLACK, housewife: I don't know. This is my first winter in Edmonton. So far, it has been very mild, and if this is the worst the weatherman can do, I'm not going to worry. I've enjoyed this winter very much.

IRENE SALTER, clerk: I hope so. The really cold winters make me wish I was secretary to the manager of a California orange plantation. This winter has been nice so far, but they say you never can tell. I'm just keeping my fingers crossed, and hoping for the best.

J. PUGH, salesman: I'm afraid the worst is yet to come. If you say we are going to get a mild winter, we get a terrible one, and if you say we are going to have a bad one, it's as mild as spring. So I'm counting on a really bad winter.

Plans Are Made By C.C.F. Groups For Conventions

Executive boards for C.C.F. organizations in East and West Edmonton Dominion constituencies were formed Tuesday night, when C.C.F. supporters met in double meetings at the 103 street, I.O.O.F. hall. The two boards were named in preparation for C.C.F. party nominating conventions for the two ridings.

Mrs. F. C. Butterworth was elected president of the West Edmonton riding organization, and A. I. Curfman, president of the East Edmonton group.

Members of the west board are: A. R. MacKay, vice-president; A. Richardson, secretary-treasurer; Dr. G. Milner; D. Roberts, Fort Saskatchewan; Miss M. Crawford; M. L. Stetson, Fort Saskatchewan; E. Lewis; J. Devereux, Horse Hills; Miss Isabel MacMillan; A. Allan; J. Gow, Mrs. D. L. Shortliffe; Clifford E. Lee, and J. Hollingshead.

Others named
To the East Edmonton group, the following were named: William J. Moffatt, vice-president; A. E. Thornton, secretary-treasurer; J. W. H. Williams; N. P. Finmore; J. Peters; Mrs. J. Winkski; T. Truscott; T. Gordon, Beverly; J. H. Dowler; Winch Clark, and S. Metcalfe.

Convention dates are to be set by the two executive bodies. It is planned to have the conventions on separate days.

One hundred persons attended the Tuesday meeting, at which Miss Mary Crawford, provincial executive member, presided.

Parleys Continue On Day Nursery

Conversations are continuing between the provincial government and the city relative to the establishment of day nurseries, here. Mayor John W. Fry stated Wednesday. He intimated that a progress report on the negotiations would be submitted to the next city council meeting.

It is probable that a committee will be appointed by the provincial government to inquire into the need in Edmonton for these nurseries, and to gather other data including the number of children to be accommodated, costs of operation, and the location of a suitable building.

It has been represented to the city that the cost to the city of operating the nursery here would be $50 monthly, but the authorities are not fully convinced of the accuracy of this estimate. Under the proposal made by the Dominion government and transmitted to the municipality by the provincial government the Dominion would pay 50 per cent of the cost of operation, with the provincial and municipal government sharing equally the other 50 per cent.

Surveyors Name Year's Officers

*W. Humphreys, Winnipeg, chief surveyor for the Canadian Pacific Railway, was elected president of the Alberta Land Surveyors' Association, at annual meetings held Tuesday in the Macdonald hotel. Other officers named were J. W. Dose, Edmonton, vice-president, and J. H. Holloway, Edmonton, re-elected as secretary-treasurer.

At a banquet held in the hotel Tuesday evening, association members heard addresses by G. H. N. Monkman, deputy minister of public works, who spoke on post-war problems, and A. W. Hadow, Edmonton city engineer. C. H. Snell, Red Deer, retiring president, was banquet chairman.

Salvation Official Plans Installation

Lt. Col. William Oake, Salvation Army public relations officer for Western Canada, arrived in Edmonton Wednesday noon, to conduct the official installation of Brig. Rufus R. Raymer, newly appointed Salvation Army divisional commander, Friday at the Salvation Army, 102 Street Citadel at 8 p.m. The public is invited to attend the ceremony.

Prior to the installation, Lt. Col. Oake will attend a welcome dinner being given in honor of the new divisional commander and his wife at the Royal George hotel. Twenty-five city officers of the Salvation Army will be present.

Military Orders

Orders by Capt. T. W. Cogland, M.C., officer commanding.

Parades: The company will parade Thursday, Jan. 20, at 10:45 hours. Dress: Battle dress, winter mutton caps and skeleton web.

Training instruction in the following: No. 1 platoon, anti-tank rifle; No. 2 platoon, rifle; No. 3 platoon, gas training; No. 4 platoon, M.E.D. and bayonet training.

Killed in Action

Pte. Douglas McPherson of The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, who was killed in action in Italy Dec. 27, according to information received by his wife, who lives at 10252 109 street. He was 35 years old. He enlisted two years ago. He was wounded in the Sicilian campaign, but on recovery returned to duty with the regiment in November. In addition to his wife he is survived by three children: his parents, Mr. and Mrs. N. McPherson, of 11830 92 street, and two brothers, Cpl. James McPherson, 25, and Pte. Archibald McPherson, 31. In his school days Pte. Douglas McPherson attended the H. A. Gray school, and was a driver with the Western Transfer Company before joining the army.

A-R-O-U-N-D THE TOWN

Fit-Lt. Harold Ransom Sutton, D.F.C., who was previously reported missing after air operations overseas, has now for official purposes been presumed dead. His father, R. F. Sutton, is manager of the Sun Life Assurance Company here.

T. Pigersgill, agricultural advisor to the Selective Service Commission, arrived in Edmonton Wednesday. He will attend a meeting with other Selective Service officials and members of the department of agriculture Thursday.

Maj. Bruce V. Massie, prominent Edmonton lawyer, has been promoted to that rank, according to advices received here by friends. Maj. Massie, who has been serving overseas for nearly two years, has returned to Canada and is taking a course at Kingston, Ont.

Descriptive outline of the life of carnival personnel, was given to members of the Cosmopolitan club Tuesday at the Corona by "Ted" Fladager, former showman. Traveling life of carnival members and their special train accommodation was pictured.

FO. Frank Mannors, 22-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Thorson Mannors of Squamish, B.C., formerly of Edmonton, has been reported missing and presumed killed in action overseas. FO. Mannors was educated in Edmonton and Vermilion. He received training at No. 2 A.O.S.

Agreement on wages and working hours has been reached by Packing Plant Employees Union, Local 78, with the Swift Canadian Co. Ltd., J. Wallin, president of the local announced Wednesday. The agreement will be forwarded to the Regional War Labor Board for approval, he said.

Cpl. Frank Wheeler's appeal against conviction on a charge of rape was unsuccessful in appeal court Tuesday, but the three-year sentence imposed in the lower court was reduced to 18 months. The appellant was found guilty of an offence against a girl, the offence taking place at the foot of McDougall Hill.

David Ure, Social Credit M.L.A. elect for Red Deer riding, will speak Thursday night at a meeting of East Edmonton Associated Social Credit Groups, to be held at 8 o'clock in Social Credit hall, 9974 Jasper avenue. His topic will be, "The Outcome of the Red Deer By-election." Floyd M. Baker, Social Credit M.L.A. for Clover Bar, will show colored motion pictures on the Alaska Highway, and musical numbers will be enjoyed. Rev. F. W. Williams, groups' president, will be in the chair.

One in Hospital After Accident

Cpl. Daniel Cummings, of the Chicago quartermaster's depot, Edmonton, was placed in the U.S. Army hospital Tuesday afternoon, suffering from concussion and a bruised forehead, after the car he had been operating crashed head-on into a water tank truck loaded with 480 gallons of water, at 118 avenue and St. Albert road.

Driver of the truck, Lionel F. Davies, 11837 130 street, told police that he saw the other car as he was about to turn west on 118 avenue. He applied his brakes, but the army car struck the front of the truck.

Detective Tells Necessity For Securing Doors

Edmonton Gyros were treated to an interesting talk on "Crime Prevention" at their weekly luncheon meeting in the Macdonald hotel Tuesday. The speaker was Detective James E. Peterson of the Edmonton city police force. President S. N. Smith was in the chair.

Detective Peterson outlined various methods by which city business men and citizens in general could aid police in prevention of robberies and thefts of all descriptions. He urged that all business premises be properly secured each evening before those responsible leave for home.

"By secure, I don't mean that a place of business is considered secure when doors and windows are locked. There are many windows and doors in local places of business that should be bricked up as they are not now serving the purpose for which they were intended. They only serve as a means of entry for thieves," he said.

The speaker pointed out that a building was not secure unless it could not be entered by a robber during the period of one hour, which was the time it took the constable on the beat to make his rounds.

He also sounded a note of warning to householders. Doors and windows should be securely fastened when the occupants were away and he mentioned several ways of strengthening locks on doors which would definitely prevent entry.

Bill Muir thanked the speaker on behalf of the club. Two new members, George T. McMurray and Douglas W. Cobble, were officially inducted into the club by Nelles V. Buchanan, K.C.

Several fake ambulance calls have been made recently, William Bailey, office employee of Jack Hays Limited, complained to city police Tuesday night.

Arrives Overseas

Pte. John George Fothergill, C.A.S.C., son of Mrs. John Fothergill, 10919 82 street, who arrived overseas shortly before Christmas, according to word received here, by his mother. He enlisted in September, 1942, and took basic training at Grand Prairie, later moving on to stations at Red Deer and Calgary. Prior to joining the forces, he was employed by the Canadian National Railways as a train clerk. He attended Cromdale, Parkdale and Technical High schools, and was known as a hockey enthusiast. He was also a former carrier boy for The Edmonton Bulletin.

Woman Is Charged On 2 Theft Counts

Several articles, allegedly stolen from two city departmental stores, were found in a woman shopper's hand-bag, late Tuesday, according to city police. Goods from the store in which she was arrested included 32 packages of bouillon, a tea towel and a woman's dress. From the store two towels and a bottle of odo had been taken. The woman, charged with two counts of theft, appeared before Magistrate A. L. Millar, K.C., Tuesday morning.

Your Baby And Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDERD

The "no" period of childhood always strikes the mother unawares. Heretofore her baby has been sweet and submissive.

And then, overnight, so it would seem, he begins to stamp his feet or knock his head on the floor or merely stand and scream. "No, no, I won't," when she makes the most innocent suggestion.

This no-no period is not indicative of a child's future incorrigibility. It doesn't mean that unless the parent clamps down and becomes a stern disciplinarian the child will never be co-operative again.

What it does mean is the child has ceased to be a mindless toy wound up and run by the parent. He is growing into a person who knows what he likes or dislikes, who knows when he wants to play, go to sleep, go to the toilet or how to act in other situations which are typical of a child's day.

This is a good time to take stock of one's method of approach. It's pretty certain that it doesn't work well to say, "Johnny, you've got to come in now. It's time for dinner." It may work very well to say, "Johnny, look in the window. Snooky knows it's dinner time and he's waiting for you to come in."

Or, if there is no black cocker to look wistfully from the window, she may say, "It's train time and your little trains are waiting to be sent on their way. Mustn't miss train time."

By such methods one sets the child's interest in a different direction instead of putting thumbs down on what he is doing and saying, in effect, "You can't do that any more. You've got to do what I say." That brings about a perfect fury of negatives and the

DOROTHY DIX SAYS—

Wives' Fury to Advice on Hubbies Unexplainable

Comforts, Luxuries, Happiness Bound Up in Men's Continued Love for Women; Wives Should Try to Make Their Men Happy

Every time I attempt to hand out a few well-meant tips to my sister women about how to hold a husband, I get dozens of letters of furious protests from married ladies demanding to know why they should wear themselves out trying to appease their husbands, and asking why shouldn't a husband make just as much effort to keep his wife in love with him as she makes to keep herself attractive to him?

And they wind up by angrily asserting that they "don't want husbands who have to be held." Apparently nothing else makes a woman see red so much as the mere suggestion that her husband could ever possibly lose his taste for her.

HAPPINESS AT STAKE

Why women take this antagonistic attitude on the subject is one of the mysteries of feminine psychology that no one can explain, for certainly every wife knows that her material well-being depends upon how her husband feels toward her. As long as he is in love with her he will be tender, considerate, pleasant to live with, and will work his fingers to the bone to give her comforts and luxuries.

But when he ceases to care for her and she becomes an Old Woman of the Sea on his back, instead of a Lady Love against his heart, he becomes nothing but a grudging meal ticket. He considers that he has paid for his mistake in marrying a woman who has gotten on his nerves by supporting her, and that he is not called on to feed her on sentiment as well as fillet mignon.

No man ever blames himself for falling out of love with his wife, or thinks that he could in any way have prevented the catastrophe. He lays the onus of it on her, and honestly believes that if she had not quit weaving her spells of enchantment over him he never would have wakened to the fact that she had become fat and middle-aged, or noticed how young and pretty and slim his secretary was.

MEN MARRY FOR LOVE

And maybe he is right at that. For while women marry for a number of reasons besides love, such as, or that their silly idea of being called "Mrs." gives them some sort of social prestige, or their desire for security, or wanting to get out from under Mother's thumb and have homes of their own, and so on, men, the sentimentalists, rarely marry for anything except love alone.

Practically every bride starts out with the initial advantage of having her husband more in love with her than she is with him, and if with this edge she loses out and lets him get away from her, or permits some other woman to steal him from her, it is her own fault. In parent is as often the loser as the child.

There are things which have to be done and there are no round-about ways to accomplish them without arousing opposition, then they have to be done. The real difficulty with that method is that eventually the mother persuades herself that everything she wants to do, or wants the child to do, belongs in that category.

To espouse such an idea, to perpetually run counter to the child's desires, just because of convenience or laziness or lack of ingenuity, is to make this purely temporary phase of negativism grow into a perfect glint of rebellion against all authority.

Our leaflet, "When the Child Says, No," may be had by mailing your request for it, together with a 4-cent stamped, self-addressed envelope, to Myrtle Meyer Elderd in care of this newspaper.

his bemused state her infatuated bridegroom sees her as Miss America, no matter how snub is her nose and how carrotty her hair. He believes her possessed of every feminine charm and virtue, and he is sure she is the only woman in the world for him.

And if she has the sense to know which side of her bread is buttered, she will keep him that way to the end of the chapter. That it can be done is amply proven by the shining examples we see now and then of men who still call their wives "girlie" and worship at their feet after fifty years of matrimony.

The trouble with women is that they think that marriage is the end of their careers, instead of their realizing it is just the beginning. Their one thought and purpose and objective ever since they got in their teens is to catch a husband and, having achieved their aim, they think they can sit down, fold their hands and take things easily. They think they do not have to put on an act any longer, and that their marriage certificate entitles them to pass up the beauty show, quit counting their calories, eat oysters and tell their husbands home truths.

SHOW LITTLE CONSIDERATION

Going on the cheerful theory that a husband is like a yellow dog that you can't lose, no matter how much you kick it about, many a wife never makes the slightest effort to make herself attractive to her husband. She comes down to breakfast in a sloppy and soiled housegown, with her face still covered with cold cream. She never shows her husband any affection, or even says "thank you" for the money he works so hard to get for her. She never pays him a compliment or jollies him along. She doesn't listen when he tries to tell her his hopes and plans.

But, on the contrary, she bosses the life out of him. She nags and frets at him. She never speaks to him except to find fault with him. She takes away every vestige of his personal liberty. She even teaches the children to look upon him as a nonentity in the home he supports. And then she wonders why he has ceased to love her.

Of course, it takes work and thought and sacrifice to hold a husband. But it can be done. And it pays to do it. Try it, ladies.

War Kitchen

By GAYNOR MADDOX

Here are two new gelatin desserts to add inexpensive surprise to your wartime meals.

COCOA PUDDING

(Serves 4 to 6)

One envelope plain unflavored gelatin, 1 cup cold water, 2 cups warm milk, pinch of salt, 2 tablespoons cocoa, 3 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon vanilla.

Soften gelatin in cold water. Mix cocoa, salt and sugar with a little milk to make a paste, then add to the warm milk and heat to boiling point. Remove from fire, add gelatin and vanilla, and stir until gelatin is dissolved. Pour into individual molds that have been rinsed out in cold water first, and chill. When ready to serve, unmold on dessert plates and serve with plain cream.

NOTE: If left-over cocoa is used, soften gelatin in 1/2 cup cold water, add to hot cocoa, and stir until dissolved. Proceed as above. One stiffly beaten egg white may be added if desired.

This is a delicious way of using up that left-over cooked cereal:

REFRIGERATOR INDIAN PUDDING

(Serves 4 to 6)

One envelope plain unflavored gelatin, 1 cup cold milk or water, 1 1/2 cups milk, 2 egg yolks, 1/4 cup cooked cereal (farina, oatmeal, corn meal, etc.), 1/4 cup molasses, 1/4 teaspoon ginger, 1/4 teaspoon cinnamon, 2 egg whites, 2 tablespoons sugar.

Soften gelatin in cold milk or water. Make a boiled custard with the 1 1/2 cups milk and egg yolks. Add softened gelatin and stir until dissolved. Blend molasses, cereal and spices. Stir in custard. Cool until mixture begins to jell. Fold in stiffly beaten egg whites to which two tablespoons sugar has been added.

Turn into individual molds (or one larger one) that have been rinsed out in cold water first, and chill. When firm and ready to serve, unmold on dessert plates and serve with cream. One-half cup raisins or chopped nuts may be folded into pudding with egg whites, if desired.

Tomorrow's Menu
(Eat the Basic 7 Every Day)
BREAKFAST: Baked apples, fried left-over oatmeal, syrup or honey, enriched toast, butter, coffee, milk for children.
LUNCH: Creamed eggs on whole wheat toast, crisp bacon, cole slaw, sliced oranges, tea, milk for children.
DINNER: Beef and soya grits loaf, mushroom gravy, baked potatoes, buttered carrots, enriched bread, butter, green salad, refrigerator Indian pudding, coffee, milk for children.

WINDIEST SPOT ON EARTH
Adelle land, on the Antarctic continent, is the windiest place on earth. A full gale blows there day in and day out. The wind never dropped below 90 miles an hour for one whole day in 1912, and raced along at 60 miles an hour for a month.

Gideon Planish

By Sinclair Lewis

THE STORY: As Dean of Kinnick College in 1926, Gideon Planish is well-esteemed, in demand as a public speaker, and referred to as a "leader of humanitarianism." His wife, Peony, is attractive, extravagant and ambitious. It is she, who suggests they cash in on his lecture engagements and who urges him to write remunerative articles for Rural Adult Education. When Mr. Joalyn, publisher of Rural Adult Education, offers him the editorship at an increase in salary, he accepts.

CHAPTER XIV

HIS job as editor of Rural Adult was not working out as he had dreamed.

He had to learn painfully, from his own assistant—an aged party who would himself have been the editor if he had not been a periodic drunk—a whole tiresome technique of getting out of the office, how to read manuscripts by smell, without wearing out the eyes; how to get a thousand-word article into an eight-hundred-word space; how to choose the lead article and, with a stern printer waiting, rewrite its title; and, most of all, how to obtain photographs for illustrations. He usually telephoned to the press agent for a railroad or a factory and promised him a credit which would undoubtedly sell 10000 passenger-miles.

All these mysteries the Doctor could learn and did learn. What troubled him was that he was getting only half of his handsome salary.

Mr. Joalyn explained that this wasn't his fault; that he was conservatively, ten times as anxious to pay up as Dr. Planish was to get the cheque. It was the fault of the printers, who insisted on getting their wages every week; it was the advertisers, always so slow to meet their bills; it was the paper manufacturers, always so intolerant about credit; it was the dead-beat subscribers; it was everything except the publisher himself.

Jittery now for the first time since their marriage, the Planishes had their landlord dunning them for the fifty dollars a month, the corner grocer refusing to charge it, and the maid becoming so impudent that they had to pawn Peony's wrist-watch. The Doctor was terrified. The warmth and faith of Peony were even more important to him than the good steak dinners which he was not getting and of hungry days. And it bothered him even more that Peony was not getting the brown juicy steak either. But she did not nag.

She scoffed, "Well, look at us! The hometown boy and girl that went to the city and made good! One bottle of milk in the house, and that belongs to that yelping young sparrow, Carrie. Oh, honey-sweet, I think maybe it was all my fault. I was too greedy!"

She sobbed against his shoulder. He sobbed and looked up at him with the face of a little girl who has been naughty. He kissed her, and her sobbing dwindled to a tired little whimpering.

Her fault? He thought. Her greed? Why, she was the one person in the world who didn't know how to be greedy. By God, she'd have a place on Long Island and a marble swimming-pool before he was through!

This time it was the Doctor who wrote to Whipple Jackson, and he enclosed a promissory note, and they had steak again, and dry martinis.

Though he did receive only half his pay, it was not easy for the Doctor to quit Rural Adult Education. He enjoyed the small distinction of being a real editor and he, the one time Dean and Professor, had little value on the labor market now.

President T. Austin Bull would not give him any ardent recommendations, and, anyway, not till late winter would the slave philosophers be standing in that labor market while the trustees and presidents of the several colleges looked at their teeth and wind and conservatism.

Under her skilled hand, the Doctor scheduled a whole repertoire of shows from which the local committees could pick:

W. J. Bryant: Soldier-Saint. Don't Be a Sinecrist. Trust in Youth.

The Dangerous Age. Home Learning for Growups. How to Keep the Young Generation at Home.

Is College Worth While? Should Girls Go to College? What's the Best School for Your Children?

The answer to the last query was "the nearest one." This discourse was described by the Dragon as "sixty-one minutes of fun, learning, bright anecdote and sound advice, by a great professional educator." These topics, with a half-tone of Dr. Planish smiling sideways at the cord on his eyeglasses, were emblazoned in a leaflet sent out to all customers interested in cultural wares.

For two weeks out of every six, that winter, Dr. Planish peddled the pebbly trail of the small-time lecturer.

Before the next summer, they had eleven hundred dollars in the bank, the new car and the newest piano had been paid for—nearly—and they had cautiously put up a little money on margin with a conservative firm of stockbrokers.

"What if that old meanie, A. J., don't pay your salary very often," crowed Peony. "We're going to have the marble swimming-pool without him!"

After their financial recovery, the Planishes were able to step up on a fairly high plane of society: investment counselors and general managers of packing plants and high school principals and lawyers and dealers in music, with wives who had most of them been born middle-aged.

"We're going ahead again!" Peony crowed. "These people ain't so hot, but wait'll we get to New York! We'll be chumming up with the Rockefeller and Mary Pickford and Nicholas Murray Butler!"

One of their warmer friends at this time was a gasoline dealer who owned a new radio station. He invited Dr. Planish to make a regular Saturday morning fifteen-minute address for three weeks, and even paid him ten dollars per augury.

So, on the miraculous radio waves, carrying his message at 180,000 miles a second, the streamlined philosopher told the far-flung things that they ought to read the Bible, that wealth did not ensure happiness, that just the other day he had talked, personally, with the Governor of a populous State, and that all conscientious citizens ought to vote—a virtuous act that Dr. Gideon Planish had never yet performed.

Authors Hear R. E. Gard

Twenty-five members and guests were present at the meeting of the Canadian Authors' Association, Edmonton branch, held at the home of Mrs. J. B. Stewart, 10757 80 avenue, on Monday evening.

Robert E. Gard, of the University of Alberta, who is making a survey of the local history, traditions and folk-lore of the province for the Rockefeller foundation, was guest speaker. He said that Alberta, with its flat lands and mountains for inspiration, should some day produce a great race of writers and artists. Up to now, Albertans have not made the best use of the resources of this province though.

He mentioned an especially good material, the courage of the people in the face of adversity such as the "next year phyllophaga" of the farmers; loneliness of the prairies and hardships endured by pioneer women; heroism of priests and missionaries; traders, bootleggers, ranchers, explorers; religions; mixed races, etc.

Concluding, Mr. Gard asked that any legends and folk-lore be submitted to him at the University.

Mrs. M. Ryan was welcomed as an affiliate member. Refreshments were served at the close of the meeting.

Mrs. G. E. Hayward invited the members to hold the February meeting at her home.

Parties For Bride-Elect

Mrs. John K. Fife entertained at her west end home Tuesday afternoon in honor of her sister, Miss Joan Archibald, whose marriage to Capt. E. Hartt Collins, U.S.A.F., will take place this week-end. Capt. Collins' mother, Mrs. J. E. Collins, and sister, Mrs. R. B. Stark, who have arrived from Riverside, Calif., were also guests-of-honor.

The tea table was centered with a bowl of daffodils and lighted by white tapers. Mrs. W. D. Ferris and Mrs. George Henwood poured tea. Those serving were Mrs. William Archibald, Mrs. W. Wilkin, Mrs. Richard Wilson, Miss Elizabeth Milner, Mrs. Robert Howell, Mrs. Robert Love and Mrs. Thomas Hine.

Miss Betty Smith and Miss Elizabeth Milner were hostesses at a sleigh drive Tuesday night in honor of Miss Archibald and Capt. Collins, and later guests were entertained at the home of Miss Milner's parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. E. Milner. Other parties planned for this week in honor of the bride-elect include a coffee party to be given Thursday by Mrs. C. Rutherford and a tea Thursday afternoon to be given by Mrs. Hugh Nash.

Mrs. G. Leslie Williamson is entertaining at an "after five" party Wednesday in honor of Miss Archibald. Mrs. Collins and Mrs. Stark and her son and daughter-in-law, Lt. and Mrs. Munro Williamson.

Mrs. J. Hodgson Re-Elected Head St. Peter's Guild

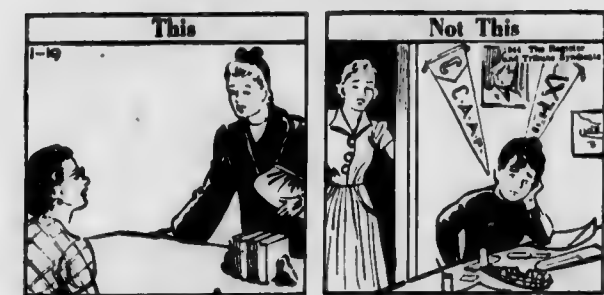

Mrs. J. Hodgson was re-elected president of the Ladies' Guild of St. Peter's church at its annual meeting held recently.

Other officers elected were: Mrs. J. Robins, vice-president; Mrs. L. Marsden, treasurer; and Mrs. H. Fowler, secretary.

Arrangements are being made to hold a social evening on January 25, commemorating the thirtieth anniversary of the church. Plans were also made to hold a Valentine tea early in February.

Canadian Red Cross in Britain Efficient at Variety of Work

MARGARET ECKER

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(CP)—The Canadian Red Cross in Britain is like the handy, dandy little household gadgets salesmen used to sell from door to door.

The gadget was reputed to do everything from peeling potatoes to keeping the baby amused and the Red Cross does that and several hundred more things, along with its better-known job of keeping Canadian service people in woolies and Canadian hospitals here and in the Mediterranean in supplies.

Mrs. William Stickney, formerly of Newcastle, N.B., has lots of surprises to pull out of the hat as she takes a visitor on a tour of the large headquarters on Berkeley Square.

In one room for example, Mrs. E. Glenn Allen, one of the many English workers, was sitting among piles of battered books, paste and paper, rebinding books from the libraries of Canadian hospitals.

CIVILIAN RELIEF

In the civilian relief department with shelves of clothing for persons of all ages, Mrs. David Leggett of Montreal was sorting out clothing to be given to a party of refugees recently escaped from the European continent.

A woman she was outfitting was one of the leaders of the Paris underground movement. The Gestapo got onto her trail and she had to leave France without money or clothing.

The Red Cross also provides layettes for every baby of a Canadian soldier born in England.

All sorts of problems find their way to the Red Cross. Recently a Canadian soldier sent overseas from England learned that his English wife was suffering from tuberculosis. He was frantic with worry that she wasn't receiving the proper care. So the Red Cross investigated, saw that woman was placed in a sanatorium and now visits her regularly to make sure she is progressing satisfactorily.

ENGLISH WORKERS

In a workshop, in the hum of seven sewing machines, English women, working with Canadians living in London, such as Mrs. Walter Ridley, formerly of Nelson, B.C., make special supplies for Canadian hospitals here.

Mrs. R. Townley, who was Ruth Plum of Vancouver, is Mrs. Ridley's secretary.

Working with the Red Cross prisoners-of-war bureau in Ottawa, Red Cross here also runs an information department. Relatives and friends in Canada of service people overseas, who haven't heard from them for some time frequently ask Red Cross to trace the missing persons.

Sometimes it takes the police, and all manners of means, but the Red Cross usually get their man—or woman.

Mrs. H. C. Pettet Head of Guild

The Parish Guild of Holy Trinity church held its annual meeting at the home of Mrs. A. H. Templeton Wednesday. Mrs. H. C. Pettet was re-elected to office as president.

Other officers are Mrs. W. M. Nalby, honorary president; Mrs. G. G. Reynolds, honorary vice-president; Mrs. A. H. Lord, vice-president; Mrs. G. L. Benson, secretary; Mrs. Gordon Proctor, treasurer.

Reports showed a successful year. Plans were discussed for a tea to be held at the home of Mrs. Percy Johnson this month. Mrs. A. H. Lord was appointed convener.

Calendar

All Saints' W.A. devotional meeting in the parish hall, Thursday at 3 p.m.

Knox W.M.S. annual meeting Thursday at 3 p.m. A chapter of the study book "The Grace of Living and Working Together" will be reviewed by Mrs. A. K. Buckham.

McDonald Baptist Ladies' Mission Circle, meeting postponed from last week. Meeting in the church Thursday at 2:30 p.m.

L.A. to the F.A.L.C. meeting at the home of Mrs. James Macdonald 10344 162 street, Thursday at 3 p.m.

Kiwanis Ladies Hold Election

Mrs. F. J. Folinsbee was installed as president of the Kiwanis Ladies' club at its regular meeting held Monday at the home of Mrs. G. Gottfred.

Other officers are Mrs. D. B. Jones, first vice-president; Mrs. F. W. Thyne, second vice-president; Mrs. Eldon Hayward, secretary and press; Mrs. G. Gottfred, treasurer; Mrs. H. O. Patriquin, social convener; Mrs. L. Larsen, C.G.I.T. convener; Mrs. E. T. Love, flower convener; and Mrs. Arthur Burrows, past president.

Plans were discussed for the continuance of the club's work at the Kiwanis Children's Home during the present year.

Scottish Club To Hold Dance

The Edmonton Scottish Society will hold its annual Burns' night celebration with a concert and dance in the I.O.O.F. Temple, 95 street and 112 avenue, on Saturday. The Rev. D. C. Ramsey, chaplain to the society, will be chairman, and will give an address on "Robert Burns."

President Mrs. George Gellatly will welcome the guests and proceeds will be donated to the W.A. to the R.C.C.S. These funds will help the auxiliary to provide comforts and cigarettes for the men overseas.

Among the artists will be Miss C. Clarke, Mrs. J. Scott, Mrs. W. McLennan, Guy Turner, W. Townsend, Jack Jones, Miss J. Stewart, Miss J. Dobbie, Miss E. Davidson, Miss B. Cairney, Miss Viola Milne, Miss N. Skinner and Piper J. Milne.

Auxiliary to Hold Bingo On Thursday

The Ladies' Auxiliary to The Loyal Edmonton Regiment, held its January meeting in the Corona hotel recently when Mrs. Bert Miller reported that arrangements have been completed for a bingo party to be held Thursday in the Alberta Avenue Community Hall. Proceeds from the party will be used for comforts for the men of the regiment overseas.

Mrs. Miller is being assisted by Mrs. John Michaels, Mrs. J. R. Turner and Mrs. A. E. Newton.

It was reported that money for the unit had been sent to Lt. Col. J. C. Jefferson, D.S.O., E.D., officer commanding the regiment, and also that parcels of soap and shaving soap had been sent to the men.

Mrs. H. G. MacDonald said she had visited men in hospital who had returned from The Loyal Edmonton Regiment overseas and also that she had met trains with returned men on board.

Mrs. Noel V. White was appointed corresponding secretary and Mrs. Alan Purvis was appointed to act as recording secretary in the absence of Mrs. W. C. Mundy.

Elderly U.S. Woman Headed Amateur Underground in France

NEW YORK, Jan. 19.—Trains carrying one American and one German prisoner of war met at a Spanish border town. Etta Shiber, shabbily dressed American housewife of 64, peered through her window. She saw a pretty red-haired Maia Hari type, 30 perhaps, stepping gaily down to the platform. Uniformed Nazi officers moved forward with bouquets of roses, and a band played. Watching, Mrs. Shiber wondered: "Can that be the prisoner I'm being swapped for?"

Safe at home here now, Mrs. Shiber still feels a little wonder, exclaiming, "The redhead was my opposite number—and she was Johanna Hoffmann!"

But it wasn't an uneven exchange, at that.

Hoffmann, the professional spy, was caught by the FBI in 1938. A former hairdresser on the liner Europa, Hoffmann had helped a ring of informers who were after American gun secrets and other military and naval data.

18 MONTHS IN PRISON

Mrs. Shiber, widow of a newspaper man, saw Paris fall and somehow found herself helping British soldiers from Dunkirk, and Frenchmen, to escape to fight again. The Shiber house became an amateur Underground Railway station. Two hundred men took shelter there on their way out of Axis-ruled France before the Germans found Mrs. Shiber and imprisoned her for 18 months.

"I didn't stop to think when I helped the first one—Maybe I did it because he looked like my brother," Mrs. Shiber says.

It happened on the clogged South road over which so many Parisians were going and coming in chaos as their beaten officials fled and fawned before the Germans. Mrs. Shiber had started to flee, but had turned around. With her was another middle-aged woman, Kitty, who kept a dress shop. They stopped their car before an inn to have a cup of tea on their way home. As they started to drive off, the inn-keeper ran out and told them an English soldier from Dunkirk was hiding in a back room. Wouldn't they take him along? The soldier came up and Mrs. Shiber looked at him.

NOTHING ELSE TO DO

"We took him. There was nothing else to do," she observes, scarcely aware that this simple human response, multiplied many thousands of times as the invaders advanced, largely accounts for the existence, today, of an heroic Underground of huge proportions. At that time there were no organized escape

Miss MacKay Married Here

At an afternoon service Tuesday in the Lady chapel of All Saints cathedral, Miss Marjorie Lola MacKay, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond MacKay, of 10216 95 street, became the bride of Pfc. Robert Henry Benedict, U.S.A.A.F., stationed in Edmonton, son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Benedict of Eau Claire, Wis. The Rev. Canon A. M. Trendell officiated.

The bride, who was attended by her sisters, Lois and Jean, wore an afternoon dress of chalk white, with hat to match, trimmed with dainty veiling, and a corsage bouquet of red roses. She was given in marriage by her father.

Miss Lola MacKay chose an informal frock of Italian blue, with hat to match, and Miss Jean MacKay was dressed in a beige ensemble with hat of the same color. Both wore corsage bouquets of yellow roses.

Best man was Sgt. Theodore Turner, U.S.A.A.F.

An informal reception was held following the service at the home of the bride's parents, where 25 guests gathered to wish the couple well.

First Aid Classes Start Friday Night

St. John Ambulance Association is sponsoring a series of first aid classes for women. Lectures will be given at headquarters in the King Edward hotel and will commence Friday evening at 7 p.m. Lectures will be given on anatomy and demonstration and practice in the use of the triangular bandage. Successful candidates will receive a certificate of proficiency. A nominal charge will be made to cover instruction, books, bandage, examination and certificate. For full particulars phone Roy Barson, 7389.

BRITAIN TO HELP RELEASED EUROPE

LONDON.—(CP)—While the Allied forces prepare for a second front, the British government is planning a second invasion wave—men and women bearing food and clothing for the ragged and starved people of Europe.

The Board of Trade and Ministry of Supply here have canvassed all British clothing stores for their surplus stocks. These garments are now being received and sorted at large depots. They will be ready to be rushed across the Channel in the wake of the army.

Most of the clothing being collected from shops are utility lines not in demand such as raincoats, rayon clothing. Since a woollen garment or tweed jacket takes in many cases the same number of coupons as cottons or rayon garments, British purchasers will not surrender coupons for the flummery clothes.

It is expected that knitted wear and footwear will be supplied by Canada and the United States where the shortage is not as great as it is in Britain.

GOING EAST

Mrs. J. U. Rule who will leave by plane in about a week's time for Gaspé, Quebec, to join her husband, Lt. Rule, R.C.N.V.R. She will be accompanied by their infant daughter, Stephanie.

University Plans Debate

The Public Speaking Club is having a debate in contest for the Hughall Trophy on Thursday at 7:30 p.m. in the Arts Building, Room 235.

Arts and science faculties will debate against law students. The subject is "Resolved that free enterprise should be replaced by a system of public ownership." Those taking the affirmative are: Miss Shirley Diamond and Drake Shelton. Those taking the negative are: Mel Howey and Bud Eggerberger. The adjudicators are E. S. Keeping, department of mathematics; M. H. Long, department of history; A. Stewart, department of political economy.

Personals

Mrs. W. D. McKenzie has returned to the city after visiting in Calgary guest of her father Vance B. Graveley.

Lt. J. C. Hewson, R.C.N.V.R., has returned to Deep Brook N.S. He has been spending a few weeks in the city, guest of his wife and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. McBain.

350 University Students Attend Freshman-Sophomore Event

Three hundred and fifty University students attended the "Froph", annual formal social event of the Freshman and Sophomore classes, held at The Barn Tuesday night. One of the major functions of the year, the dance theme was "As Time Goes By", and each dance was named for an event in University life.

Patrons were Dr. and Mrs. W.

John, Dr. and Mrs. D. B. Scott and Dr. Mary Winspear.

At intermission, entertainment was provided by a couple of Jitter-bugs.

Students chartered buses to take their "dates" from the meeting place at the Tuck Shop to the dance and then were picked up at the conclusion of the party at 1 a.m.

Executives in charge of arrangements for the "Froph" were: Sophomore, Ron Helmer, president; Muriel Smith, vice-president; Dawn Fairbairn, secretary-treasurer; Ernest Cudby, Jim Clow and Edgar Johansson, executive. Freshman, John Randle, president; Bob Brown, vice-president; Jack Towers, secretary-treasurer; Barbara Bunn, Bruce Allsopp and W. Stewart, executive.

Student Plays To Be Presented

The Inter-Year plays are being presented as a competition at the University of Alberta in Convocation Hall, Arts building, on Friday and Saturday, February 4 and 5, at 8:15 p.m.

The senior play "The Old Lady Shows Her Medals," written by James Barrie is being directed by Miss Molly Hughes, Kappa Alpha Theta, of Calgary. The cast includes Miss Mary Watson, Miss Evelyn Johnson, Miss Roma Ballhorn, Miss Ellen Rendell, William Bothwell and Jack Yates.

The junior play "The Willow Pattern," by Van der Meer, is directed by J. Spillios. The cast is: J. Spillios of Edmonton, and Miss Alice Ackroyd of Magrath.

The sophomore play is "Pyramus and Thisbe from Midsummer Night's Dream," directed by Gordon Smith. The cast is: R. Pulleyblank of Calgary; Ernest Gander of Edmonton; Miss Doris McCubbin, Calgary; Peter Petrashka, Calgary; Ernest Nix, Edmonton, and Orville Stratte, Edmonton.

Freshman play is "The Great Dark," written by D. Toheraugh and directed by Miss Lois McLean. The cast includes Miss Dorothy Ward, Edmonton; Miss Alta Mitchell, Miss Marian Moss, Miss Gwen Hunt, Miss Doris Barker, Miss Louise Rosborough, all of Edmonton.

The four plays will be presented each night.

Mission Band Work Secretary Was Visitor Here

Dominion Presbyterian Mission Band work secretary, Miss Ada Adams, who left the city on Tuesday after visiting in Edmonton for ten days, held two meetings with mission band leaders while she was here.

She demonstrated methods of how to carry on mission band work. A meeting of C.G.I.T. leaders and

New Officers Are Installed By Auxiliary

At the January meeting of the E.S.R.A. Ladies' Auxiliary new officers were installed. In the nine months the club has been in operation members have sent comforts to men in the armed forces. A picnic was held for a group of children, and 200 youngsters were provided with toys and treats at the Christmas tree.

Mrs. T. Irwin, past president, was in charge of the meeting and the following new officers took over: Mrs. H. Hawkes, president; Mrs. S. Sproule, vice-president; Mrs. W. Gray, secretary; Mrs. R. Endy, treasurer; Mrs. W. Eldridge, Mrs. W. Sproule and Mrs. J. Toll, entertainment committee; Mrs. N. Guild, Mrs. P. Packham, sick committee; Mrs. T. Irwin and Mrs. N. Guild, publicity committee; Mrs. J. Common and Mrs. G. Murray, refreshment committee.

A raffle will be held at the February meeting, proceeds from which will be donated to the Red Cross.

representatives of young women's groups was also held. Miss Adams visited Vegreville and Killam. At Vegreville she gave an address on "Missions Have Not Failed," when she spoke at the church service.

At Killam she addressed the Associate Society, and illustrated by a map where W.M.S. work was progressing. She mentioned that opportunities for new work were arising in Africa and South America, and she emphasized the need of Christian literature. Work in the orphaned missions is also progressing, she said.

Zoning Head

Sidney T. Lawrie, who has been re-elected chairman of the City of Edmonton Zoning Appeal Board for his third consecutive term. He has been a resident of Edmonton since 1912, and before going into business for himself in 1927, was manager of the Edmonton branch of the Royal Trust Company. He is past-president of the Edmonton Real Estate Association.

Trustees Vote $44,500.00 For School Needs

An appropriation of $44,500 was passed by the property committee of the Edmonton Public School Board for maintenance, repair work, and improvements to be made on city school buildings this year, at a meeting of the board held Tuesday night.

The maintenance department estimates presented to the property committee included the installation of improved artificial lighting in three of the schools, redecorating, plaster repair, resurfacing, replacement of stairways, repairs in classroom equipment, improvement in grounds, tools and maintenance equipment.

IMPROVE LIGHTING

The trustees decided to do as much as possible toward improving lighting facilities in schools where it was most urgently needed. The original estimates included the installation of new lighting in only two of the schools but the members voted an extra $1,700 to cover the cost of installation in a third school.

The statement of cost and consumption of electric light in city schools for the period from January 1 to November 30 in 1943 showed a decrease of $722.44 as compared with cost during the same period in 1942.

The statement of cost and consumption of water in the schools also showed a decrease of $307.46 as compared with 1942.

Total cost of coal burned in the schools this year was reported as $18,483.31 as compared with $19,405.39 during the same period last year. Trustees attributed this marked decrease to the prevailing mild weather.

VOTE FOR REPAIRS

A sum of $50 was voted by the board for the purpose of repairing showers and plumbing in the Westmount school. This decision was reached in accordance with a request from the Mountie Home and School Association which is commencing physical training classes in the school building this week.

Further discussion on the need for a new school at Forest Heights brought no decision by the members. The cost of building an entirely new school was said to be prohibitive at the present time.

Superintendent of schools R. S. Sheppard reported that the double shift method now in effect in the school for grades one and two was not entirely satisfactory. Suggestion was offered that a temporary portable building be erected as soon as possible to relieve the congested conditions.

Trustees agreed that a decision on the matter would have to be reached in the near future so plans for building could be put into effect as soon as the season opens.

McNaughton's Son Back in Canada

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Squad Leader Andrew R. L. McNaughton, R.C.A.F., who returned last night to Ottawa after being overseas for the past five months on temporary duty said his father, Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaughton, former commander of the Canadian Army overseas, was in "uncertain health." He was unable to say if Gen. McNaughton was returning to Canada soon. Squad Leader McNaughton said. He last saw him two weeks ago.

Women in Army Get Rayon Hose

OTTAWA, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Khaki rayon stockings will shortly be issued to members of the Canadian Women's Army Corps. It was announced yesterday. Scale of issue is four pairs "to be worn only when walking out" and all girls will be supplied within the next few days. Lisle hose had exclusively made up the previous issue.

By EVE CURIE
Chapter XV.

Just before leaving New Delhi, I was to see again some of the main characters in the Indian drama—as one sees famous "stars" gathered on the stage when one act of a play is over and when the curtain falls. I spent the last three days of my stay at the viceroy's house. This enabled me to have—off the record—one or two quiet talks with Lord Linlithgow on the current situation. Around 10 p.m. every night, Sir Stafford Cripps used to come from his white cottage to the palace in order to discuss his most recent negotiations with our host. From the garden where they had had dinner under the open sky, Lord Linlithgow's house guests could see—but not hear—the two men at work in the viceroy's study, under the light of a large lamp.

I got word that I had a seat on a westbound plane, from Gwalior. I went to say good-bye to General Wavell. When I told him I was leaving, he exclaimed: "Would you take a letter to my daughter Pamela, in Cairo?"—and he rushed away to write it. Air Marshal Sir Richard Peirse, whose vocabulary had consisted mainly of four words, "I want more planes," was now beginning to say: "I have more planes." The last cheering remark I heard from him was, "Give me only a six weeks' respite, and the Japanese will get a hot reception if they dare attack India." After the months of helplessness that had followed the loss of the Prince of Wales and the Repulse, the fall of Hong Kong and Singapore, Britain was recovering from those hard blows and was getting ready to answer them. If Mr. Gandhi had truly called the war cabinet's proposals to India "a postdated check on a bank that is obviously crashing," he had made at least one mistake: The British "bank" was not crashing.

This was April 4, 1942. Five months earlier, in November, I had left the United States at peace. And now I was going all the way back to New York across the Near East and Africa, by the same route that I had already once followed. In these five months, an America at war had been moving even faster than I had; geographically speaking, she had caught up with me. When the British Airways sea-plane landed "somewhere in India" for our first overnight stop, the local American consul asked me at once: "Do you care to come to a show tonight?"

COCKNEY JOKES

We went to the show. On the stage, English Tommies were making cockney jokes, while the U.S. doughboys were singing, playing the ukelele and jitterbugging madly, in an explosion of gaiety. They looked like daring and exuberant children who had been let loose on the whole world.

One more hop of our flying boat. This was Bora, Iraq. Here were my faithful friends, the MacPhersons and a young English technician by the name of Bosworth Monck, who was toiling to get planes and trucks to Russia via the Persian gulf.

CHEWING SAND.

Another day of flying then a week's respite in Cairo, Egypt, under the new Wafdist Government of Nahas Pasha, Egypt—and the young unburned Englishmen on leave who had, for months, been chewing sand in the Western Desert. Greeks, Free Frenchmen—with all the men who since 1939, had kept the war going, although they had been perpetually short of planes, guns, tanks, uniforms, boots, rifles, ammunition—everything that soldiers need to fight with. Egypt minus the aircraft that had been taken away from the RAF Middle East Command to "fill the gaps" in the Far East.

The Free French commander, Cornillon Molinier (now a lieutenant colonel), said to me: "My Lorraine group has lost its Blenheim bombers. They have been shipped to India. God knows when I shall get new planes."

My friends at the British Embassy in Cairo said to me: "We've contacted the Americans. They got you a seat on a Douglas." Again "the Americans" Pan American Airways was operating all over Africa now. When we landed in Khartoum, I hardly recognized the airport. In the torrid desert, there was a compromise between La Guardia Field and an American summer camp. The passengers who were rushing to India, Abyssinia, or the Atlantic coast could stop there for the night and get a regular American meal canned in California or Chicago. We stood in line to have our plane tickets checked by PAA employees in snappy uniforms, who loudly called "This way, please!" "This way, please!" just as if we were provincial tourists waiting to see a film in Radio City.

EVERYTHING CHANGED

Everything had changed since I had been there in the winter. Because America was in the war, I could now get some Milwaukee beer in the Sudan and eat a sizzling hamburger, worthy of the best "drive-in" restaurants in the States, in a remote Nigeria airport. Both Pan American Airways and the U.S. Army resolutely ignored tropical food and African customs. There was no nonsense about "exotic dishes": The Yanks wanted everything to be just as at home—just as in Iowa or Nebraska or Louisiana, just as in Brooklyn or San Francisco.

American men were building runways, assembling prefabricated houses, drilling wells, clearing bushes, installing radio stations and anti-aircraft guns, swearing against the mosquitoes and humming the Broadway songs. The negroes were selling snakeskin souvenirs to those American passengers who got out of the transport planes to stretch their legs on the dusty airfields, while Douglas and army craft roared in the sky overhead. What a traffic! A passenger on our trip, L. C. Reynolds (personal assistant to Juan Trippe of PAA), suddenly discovered that his luggage had been left behind in Khartoum by mistake. By the time we had got to Nigeria, the suitcase had caught up with us in the next Douglas—just as it would have done on a U.S. air line between Miami and Atlanta.

CHANGED A LOT

And the American planes too had changed at lot. In November 1941—the transport craft I had seen being used by PAA in Africa were frightfully comfortable and heavy, stuffed with carpets, padded seats, curtains, ashtrays, food, drinks—and paper bags for people who did not feel well. But now—five months later—the machines had been stripped of everything, just as had the Russian and British machines—to go faster, to save weight. I sat on a metal bench, my back to the window, with a canvas strap around my waist to keep me from sliding on the shiny seat. There were no cushions, no bulky curtains, no place to rest my head—no paper bags. The idea was perhaps that, until the war was won, none of us was supposed to be tired, or to be sick, or to rest.

Proud as I was of having flown that route before, of being an "old customer" of the line, there were few co-passengers whom I could impress with my experiences. Except for Mr. Reynolds, Cynthia Toulmin (a courageous American girl who had been driving ambulances for the Free French in the desert), and myself, the plane carried mostly free pilots who had already been over this route dozens of times, back and forth. By now the dull trans-African trip was about as much a novelty to them as a bus ride. They didn't even look through the window; they read detective stories. We also had three English boys who were returning to the British Isles after a whole year of dogfights in the Malta sky. Again, there was not much I could brag about—even after having visited Moscow and Chungking, Rangoon and Mozambique—before these fair-haired warriors in faded uniforms, who, day after day, had kept watch over the Mediterranean fortress, in the very center of the war.

What was this, now? Why was it so dark? What had happened? Nothing—nothing except that we had run into a cloud and that I had not seen a cloud since I had left China. I had almost forgotten what a cloud looked like. Presently we were circling over Lagos. I should wait three days here for a clipper—and see again my friend Brigadier W. H. A. Bishop, who supervised the British West African forces. What did he have to say, after all these months? This:

"We are building a good army for tropical warfare. I was somewhat short of officers, but I have borrowed a few from the Poles. They are doing very well. Think of that: Polish officers, sent from Scotland to command black troops!" We are also co-operating with the Free French in Equatorial Africa and Chad. Your General Leclerc, your General Sarrail, are fine men. We like them. Naturally, the big event is the work the Americans are doing in this part of the world. Their effort is magnificent and speedy. By our standards, their technique is an 'expensive' one: on a given job, they will employ a hundred skilled white men coming straight from the U.S.A. and a hundred local Negroes, whereas we should use ten Englishmen and two hundred Negroes. Also, the Americans bring everything from abroad: tents, prefabricated sheds and houses, motor wood, and banyan trees. The Americans were building an air base. They had already drilled the well. They had put in operation a noisy cement mixer and had actually persuaded the Liberian Negroes to do some regular work, at regular

"Bay" Executive Leaves For New Post

About 50 staff members of the Hudson's Bay Company retail store, including executives and departmental managers, gathered at the C.N.R. station Sunday morning to say "good-bye" to Mr. and Mrs. Clare N. Chubb and their daughter, Mrs. Marjorie McKenzie. Mr. Chubb, manager of the store here for the last three years, will take up his duties as manager of the Hudson's Bay store in Victoria. His successor here is H. S. A. Johnson, former manager of the Saskatoon store. The picture shows portion of crowd saying farewell to Mr. Chubb as he left by C.N.R. Sunday morning. Behind Mr. Chubb is Mrs. Chubb and their daughter, Mrs. Marjorie McKenzie. Among the store officials in the group are: A. S. Woollard, advertising manager; E. E. Sexsmith, manager drug and stationery departments; J. Telmer, manager furniture department; H. Brock Smith, assistant merchandise manager; W. S. Condy, controller; Maurice Rogers, manager grocery department; Phil Crawley, traffic department; Murray Hunter, personnel superintendent.

Board to Pick University Men For War Effort

To interview and select graduating engineers from the University of Alberta for the armed services and technical civilian occupations, a group of ranking officers and military officials from the Dominion Bureau of Technical Personnel arrived in Edmonton Tuesday.

Engineering students at the university have specified which of the three armed services they would prefer to join, and received their medical examinations last week. Those who are picked by the selection board for the armed services will enlist after completing their studies in May, and others will go to technical work in war plants, as the board determines.

The board was also expected to interview third-year engineering students, with a view to guiding them in summer training for technical employment after they complete the fourth year of their courses.

Graduating students who are fit for military service are directed to one of the three armed services, but those students who cannot perform active military service are allowed to choose work in an occupation of their own choice, provided it carries a high labor priority rating.

PARTY MEMBERS

Members of the technical bureau who were in the party at the university Tuesday afternoon included H. W. Lea, Ottawa, director, and V. N. Bruce, personnel officer, and Col. G. W. Beecroft, military advisor.

Four representatives of the army were with the board: Lt.-Col. F. G. Bird, Calgary, for the Royal Canadian Engineers; Lt.-Col. E. C. Mayhew, for the Royal Canadian Ordnance Corps; Lt.-Col. Philip Abbey, for the Royal Canadian Artillery, and Maj. I. H. McDonald, for the Royal Canadian Corps of Signals.

The navy was represented by Commander A. W. Baker, Lt.-Cmdr. J. J. Smith and Lt.-Cmdr. Bruce MacLean, while Lt.-Lt. Gilmore represented the Royal Canadian Air Force.

Lone U.S. Airman Tackled 30 Nazis

LONDON, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Major James H. Howard, six-foot-four Missourian, was identified last night as the Mustang pilot who dived alone into a swarm of 30 Nazi fighters over Germany during the big raid on Ochsersleben last Tuesday and bagged a probable total of six enemy planes in 30 minutes of spectacular dog-fighting before breaking off the engagement.

Arrives in U.S.

MIAMI, Fla., Jan. 19.—(AP)—Gen. Isaias Medina Angarita, president of Venezuela, arrived here last night by special Pan American clipper to make a state visit to the United States. He and his party will leave by special plane today for Washington, where the President will be guest of honor at a White House dinner.

Five shiploads of equipment, brought from the U.S.A., were taking the shape of hangars, houses, prefabricated sheds and houses, motor wood, and banyan trees. The Americans were building an air base. They had already drilled the well. They had put in operation a noisy cement mixer and had actually persuaded the Liberian Negroes to do some regular work, at regular

"Most Difficult" Operations Ahead Roosevelt Warns

WASHINGTON, Jan. 19.—(AP)—President Roosevelt, appealing for support of the $14,000,000 fourth United States war loan drive, said yesterday "until we have actually occupied Berlin and Tokyo we cannot indulge for a moment in the pleasant day dream that the war is almost over."

"Our most difficult military operations are ahead of us—not be hind us," he said in a statement.

Henry Morgenthau, Jr., made the first official sale to Vice-President Henry Wallace to launch the $14,000,000 loan.

Says Veterans Must Not Be Forgotten Men

TORONTO, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Pensions Minister Mackenzie in a review of the government's plans for rehabilitating returned servicemen, said last night "There must be opportunity available for every man when he is ready to be discharged."

A demobilization program is in progress of development, the minister told a joint meeting of the Kiwanis rehabilitation council of Greater Toronto and the Toronto citizens' rehabilitation committee, but the final decision has not been reached on all aspects of the program.

MUST PROVIDE JOBS

"It is too early to announce details, but public finance must stand behind private enterprise and private industry to maintain employment by such directed activities as reclamation schemes, conservation projects and housing programs," said Mr. Mackenzie.

"A great mass of information on these subjects has been assembled—and the government has now reached the stage where organization of administrative machinery is under way."

Bringing the discharged man and suitable basic employment opportunity together was the purpose of the federal government and "We shall need all the co-operation that you gentlemen of the business and industrial community can give us," he said.

"The members of the forces must not be discharged as forgotten men amid the mists of apathy and indifference, or into a desperate vacuum of unemployment," said Mr. Mackenzie.

C.C.F. Candidates Named in Calgary

CALGARY, Jan. 19.—(CP)—Dr. D. A. MacKenzie, Banff, was chosen C.C.F. candidate for West Calgary constituency in the next federal election and F. N. R. Morrison, for East Calgary, at the C.C.F. convention held here last night.

Dr. MacKenzie was born in Calgary, graduated in medicine from Alberta University in 1937, and took up practice in Banff three years ago after moving from Barons, Alta. He is a member of the Banff Rotary Club.

Mr. Morrison, social studies teacher at a Calgary school, has lived in Calgary for six years and in Alberta for 25 years. He graduated as master of arts, Alberta University, before entering the teaching profession. Mr. Morrison is president of the Calgary Constituency Association of the C.C.F. and a member of the national council of the party.

$18,000 Is Paid For Hereford Bull

DENVER, Jan. 19.—(AP)—A record price of $18,000 was paid yesterday for the champion Hereford breeding bull, To Triumphant 16th at the National Western Livestock Show. The animal was sold by the Thornton Hereford Ranch, Gunnison, Colo., to Ted Harper, Fresno, Calif., Hereford breeder. The previous high price for a breeding bull at the Denver show was $8,750.

The Royal Bank of Canada Annual Meeting

Morris W. Wilson, President, says any degree of political freedom impossible under wholly planned economy. Challenges socialists to show how public would benefit by state monopoly of banking.

Sydney G. Dobson, Vice President and General Manager, reports bank business at unprecedented levels. Assets reach new peak of over $1,500,000,000.

The threat to the personal liberty of all Canadians, inherent in the plans of the socialists for the nationalization of Canadian industry, was emphasized by Morris W. Wilson, President of The Royal Bank of Canada, at the bank's Annual Meeting.

Mr. Wilson reviewed the tremendous role Canada had played in this mightiest war of all time and the manner in which workmen and enterprisers alike had co-operated in it. "Despite this fact," he said, "we are being told by all the publicity methods revolutionary partisans can devise, that in order to win the peace we must change our entire economic system and launch out into new and untried paths, under new and inexperienced leaders. The theorists and visionaries who preach these doctrines of an economic revolution are the torch-bearers of a new and false hope. The fact remains that the principles they advocate can only lead, to a final and inevitable result, to a completely regimented economy, and on this point I cannot do better than quote the Editor of the London Economist, a well-known writer of liberal views:

"A wholly planned economy is incompatible with any degree of political freedom. The possibility of a man's earning his living 'in his own way, without let or hindrance, is the essential condition of there being any freedom of discussion, any freedom to oppose. If more than a fraction of the electorate come to depend for their livelihood upon the temporary masters of the mechanism of the State—that is, upon the politicians—then democracy is at an end."

"I am more convinced than ever that the menace of socialistic planning is one which closely affects everyone in Canada in both his business and private life.

"These advocates of a new order have an astounding scheme, which is to nationalize the holdings of the complete regimentation of Canada. As you know, one of their principal objectives, and the first plank in their platform, is to nationalize the banks."

SOCIALIST MENACE

"Naturally, we are interested in preserving our business, in which so many shareholders have invested, and to which so many depositors have entrusted their savings. But even more as citizens than as businessmen, we deplore the rise of this creed, because we firmly believe that implementation of the socialist plan would ruin this generation and set Canada back centuries."

"It is as a citizen as well as a banker that I put before you some further considerations to which I hope you will give your earnest thought.

"The course of the socialist party in Canada has been charted for us in several books which make clear that nothing short of complete nationalization of the means of production and finance will satisfy the party. That means domination of every phase of economic life, including agriculture, labour and capital. Therefore, because we all fall into one or other of the classes, it means domination of every individual."

"What would the socialists achieve by nationalization of the banks? Their book on social planning says that they will form one board of directors for the national bank monopoly instead of the ten private banks which now operate in competition. The socialists suggest that access to the books of the bank and a consequent rupture of the confidence relationship that now exists between bank and depositor, would be of inestimable value in determining taxation policies. But would this appeal to the depositor?

"Furthermore, as we are organized today, a prospective borrower may go from one bank to another if he fails to convince the first banker of his probity, ability and prospects; but under the socialist system, unless the prospective borrower could convince the state bank of the soundness of the project for which he sought to borrow, he would be at the mercy of the state. Do you think that such a system would assure the borrower of as fair treatment as he now receives?"

"I believe the answer to these two questions, affecting depositors and borrowers, is a positive No. On the contrary, history and experience lead us to expect that such a government monopoly of banking would lead to avowedness of the government's policy of paying adherents. At the same time, we should witness a spread of that sterility of ideas and enterprise which tends to accompany every human activity that finds itself in a position of unchallengeable power."

PRIVATE BANKING BEST

Mr. Wilson suggested that it was not simply due to chance that banking in private hands, but that the people and the Governments had considered it advisable from every point of view that banking should be free of political and partisan influences. He reminded his audience that Canadian banks were already effectively controlled by the Bank of Canada and that further intervention by the Government in the banking business would, in his belief, be superfluous and would not be welcomed by the majority who deal with the banks. Mr. Wilson again urged business to speak up on its own behalf.

Plan to Resume Output of Tubes

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 19.—(AP)—The Aluminum Company of America yesterday announced plans to resume the manufacture of aluminum collapsible tubes for tooth pastes, and pharmaceutical jellies and ointments at its Edgewater N.J., plants.

"Business will have only itself to blame if, through inaction, it vacates or fails to occupy fields of activity into which it later finds that public opinion has forced the Government to enter."

Mr. Wilson saw no reason for approaching the post-war era with any defeatist attitude and declared that the same energy, initiative and selflessness, which had developed in the war years, could be used for constructive purposes after the peace.

In all plans for the rehabilitation of devastated countries the United States and Canada would be looked to as leaders, he said.

POST-WAR REHABILITATION

"I personally believe that large outright gifts of food, raw materials, finished goods and machinery to backward and devastated countries will in the long run, and even from the most selfish point of view, not only contribute most to human welfare, but both in the short and long run be the best interests of those nations which can afford to make the gifts."

"If this is too much to expect of human beings in their present stage of development, the alternative must be loans on a very large scale on long and easy terms, or loans and gifts."

GENERAL MANAGER'S ADDRESS

Sydney G. Dobson, Vice President and General Manager, in reviewing the bank's Balance Sheet said that the volume of business passing through the bank's books had been unprecedented during the past year. Total assets now exceeded $1,500,000,000, an all-time high in the history of the bank.

He reviewed at length the part played by the banks in assisting the country's war financing.

"There appears to be a misconception in the minds of some people that the banks purchase a substantial portion of the Government public issues and increase their earnings in this manner. This is not the case. During 1943 two Victory Loans were issued, realizing $2,692,000,000. The 4th Victory Loan floated in May last was purchased by 2,699,000 subscribers, and the 5th Victory Loan in October, by over 3,000,000. In neither loan did the banks buy bonds for their own account. While there is naturally some change in the holdings of original subscribers, relatively only an unimportant amount found its way into the banks."

"In common with the other banks, we have done everything possible to make these Victory Loans successful. Managers have encouraged customers to subscribe or to increase their subscriptions. All depositors considered capable of subscribing for an amount of $5 or more have been invited to do so. And advertisements have been inserted in the press urging depositors to subscribe to the full extent of their ability."

EARNINGS MODEST

Despite the tremendous increase in the business of the bank, earnings were modest, said Mr. Dobson. "I think that any fair-minded person will agree that the $2,100,000 paid to shareholders last year was a very modest amount to be paid to the proprietors of the bank, when we consider the size of the organization and the tremendous amount of business it is necessary to handle in order to earn that amount. Any other type of business working with assets of one and a half billion dollars would have been able to earn for shareholders a considerably larger return. If we consider this total in relation to our two main earning sources—loans and investments, we find that the dividend paid to our shareholders was less than 1/5th of one cent on the dollar on the total of these two items. A very trifling handling charge, to say the least, have never heard the claim made that Canadian banks are not efficiently run, therefore the answer must be that the profit in banking is small."

Mr. Dobson reported that the progress made by the bank's South American branches had been particularly gratifying and that its foreign branches were in a position to be of practical aid in promoting post-war trade.

The General Manager remarked on the efficient manner in which the bank's staff had dealt with tremendously increased business and provided new wartime services despite enlistments, and paid tribute to the enthusiasm and ability of the many young women who have joined the bank since the war began.

2,123 ENLISTMENTS

"The voluntary response of our staff to our country's call had been magnificent," said Mr. Dobson, "and there are now 2,123 men in the armed forces. Of this number 2,009 were employed in Canada, which is equivalent to 60% of our Canadian staff of military age at the outbreak of war."

"To these men the bank pays a portion of the difference between their bank salary and service pay. They retain their membership in the Pension Fund Society and the bank pays their group insurance premiums. We shall welcome them when the time comes for them to return to their duties in the bank."

"Unhappily the number of casualties has doubled since I last reported to you; 67 of our young men have now given their lives in the cause. Their names, which we hold in honour, appear in the printed record of the bank. We extend our heartfelt sympathy to their families."

District News in Brief

Viking Well Burns Four-Day Period

VIKING: A gas well in the Viking field caught fire while being "cleaned out," and burned for four days before a crew of men succeeded in extinguishing the flames. Dick Gares and George Loper, who were working on the rig, suffered burns about the face. Some lumber and a small building housing the cleaning equipment were destroyed by the fire.

George A. Loades was re-elected president of the Viking Farmers' Co-operative Creamery Association. H. Rollans was retained as secretary and salesman and Magnus Hannsen as manager. The creamery output for 1943 was reported to be more than one million pounds, and exceeded the 1942 output by 100,000 pounds.

Mrs. J. L. Slavik was elected president of the women's curling club at an organization meeting. Other officers elected were: Vice-president, Mrs. P. Nordstrom; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Thunell. Skips chosen for the season are: Mrs. G. T. Loney, Mrs. V. Gilpin, Mrs. Thunell, Mrs. Ian McGregor, Miss Mary Slavik, Miss Ruth McLaren.

The men's curling club re-elected Bert Walters as president. Other officers named are: Vice-president, Ken Hilliker, and secretary-treasurer, Fred Reishus.

The ratepayers of the Viking school district will meet Thursday, Jan. 27, to hear reports of the last year and elect one trustee.

Phillips post office, seven miles east of Viking, has been closed by the post office department and all mail for that point is now distributed at Viking. Mrs. J. Heslop, former postmistress, has moved with her family to Fort McMurray.

The Lutheran Ladies' Aid has celebrated its fortieth anniversary. Four of the original charter members who reside in the district, Mrs. Pauline Berg, Mrs. Anne Lokken, Mrs. Hilda Hagenson and Mrs. Ida Nordstrom, were presented with life memberships.

The group sponsored the first parochial schools in this district, supported the building of the first Lutheran church, and is now raising funds for the erection of a new parsonage.

Gleaned From Rural News

LAVOY: Pioneer of this district and well-known as a cattle rancher, Peter Suddaby, died recently. He was 69 years old. Born in Ontario, Mr. Suddaby came to this district 40 years ago and has lived here since that time. He was at one time councillor of the municipal district of Patricia. He is survived by his wife, three daughters, Mrs. L. Rodwell, Mrs. E. Stone and Mrs. B. Bissell, and one son Bill. Also four brothers, William, Ernest, Howard and Edward and one sister, Mrs. Burkholder. He has 16 grandchildren. A funeral service was held at the Lavo United church with the Rev. Mr. Armstrong of Vegreville officiating. Burial was in the Lavo cemetery.

PONOKA: Plans for a nominating convention to be called in the near future were made at a meeting of the executive and members of the Ponoka Independent Constituency held here. Clinton Reed, association president presided. P. A. McKelvey, M.L.A., spoke. Resolutions receiving endorsement were: Approval of the proposal of Alex Walker to the Dominion government in consolidating the department of rehabilitation of soldiers after and during the present war, and that 30 per cent of all revenue derived from municipalities in the form of gasoline tax and licenses be earmarked and returned to the area from which it was received.

Delegates elected at the meeting to attend the independent convention which was held at Calgary Jan. 17 were: Clinton Reed, O. K. Spelrum, Herb Stretch, P. A. McKelvey, W. J. Wilde and M. Cran-dal.

Fined $500

"Frankly, Major, I don't think our gross of lipsticks is going to scratch the surface!"

Red Deer Fetes Old-Time Resident

RED DEER: M. Millard, who was sheriff and clerk of the court here since 1936, was honored before leaving for Calgary to join a law firm there. The Red Deer Kinsmen Club of which he was the organizer and served as president as well as district governor of Alberta clubs, presented him with a gift. Dr. MacGregor Parsons made the presentation on behalf of the members. Mayor E. S. Hogg, who was a guest at the meeting, spoke for the citizens and the Red Deer National War Finance Committee, in appreciation of Sheriff Millard's valuable services. Members of the National War Finance Committee also honored Mr. Millard, who had been their chairman. Art Lundie, head of the sales organization, presented him with a leather brief case and expressed thanks for his good work and good wishes in his new position.

Victor Bjorkeland, Red Deer, president of the Western Canada "B" Fairs Association, and R. A. Slyke, president of the Red Deer Agricultural Society, attended the annual convention of the Western Canada Fairs at Winnipeg.

President Frank Stewart skipped his team to victory over vice-president Douglas Gray's team in the first curling competition of the season for the Red Deer Curling Club.

The final scores were 109-104. As a result of their victory the president's men will be guests of the losers at a banquet to be held at the close of the curling season.

With both teams showing improvement in their hockey since their last appearance, the Red Deer 78th Reserve Battery R.C.A. juvenile hockey team scored a three to one victory over the Penhold R.A.F. Flyers at the arena Saturday night.

Line-ups were as follows: Penhold R.A.F. Flyers—Hayton, Cheyne, Lewis, Trevelyan, Stapleton, Cormier, Kekewich, Jewell, Janice, Parry, Krause, Reidy, Gibson, Gaetz, Grove, Dancocks, Wight, Bettenson and Goodacre.

The two teams will meet for the third time at the Red Deer arena next Saturday night.

Sea Island Cotton, which has a long fibre, was first introduced into the United States in 1788.

Tired?
HOW ABOUT A GOOD CUP OF TEA?

The "morning tea" and "afternoon tea," providing needed rest periods, together with a hot, tasty cup of tea for renewed energy, have become a national habit... and wisely so.

In Winter you tire more quickly. It's just common sense to relax instead of "driving on" toward exhaustion. And then, after a few minutes of complete relaxation, to drink a cup of hot, delicious tea. There's no quicker or pleasanter way to set the wheels in motion again.

EATON'S Sun Glo Tea is widely and favorably known for its flavor. Specify Sun Glo next time you order tea—you'll like it.
